THE CONFLICT IN PARIS.

Incorporation of the Communists—Impracticability of the Versaillists—No Quarter.

VERSAILLES, May 25—Thursday Evening.—Now fires are bursting out in Paris. The insurgents put boxes of petroleum everywhere. It is reported that the Tuileries were fired by BOURBERT's own hands. The building, they say, was steeped in petroleum.

The Church of Saint Germain l'Auxerrois and the Hotel de Ville have been burnt down, and Palais de Justice destroyed. RAVAL PICAUDE, Chief of the Communist Police, and COUSSET, superintendent of the destruction of the Vendome column, have been captured and shot. A number of prisoners, among them a hundred women of the demi-monde, taken fighting for the Commune, have arrived here. The insurgents possess only one fort—Issy—commanded by Bicetre. Blood runs in the gutters of the streets. The walls of the Tuileries have fallen. The Louvre and all the great edifices near the Tuileries are in flames. The Rue Rivoli is burning. The only means of stopping the fire is by pails of water passed from hand to hand. Dead bodies of Nationals are seen everywhere. Any hidden Nationals when found are brought out and shot immediately, and no pity is shown. A few of the Communists are still holding out, and shelling the city, doing the utmost mischief possible. The slaughter of the Nationals is frightful, and the Versaillists, since Tuesday, are killing all prisoners. The houses in the Rue Royale were wet with petroleum, and the Nationals fired them. The people are furious in consequence. I saw numbers of the Communist sympathizers killed, and among them was a young man, handsomely dressed, with hands tied and brains blown out, and lying on the street. It is clear that the insurgents intended to destroy the whole city. Even women were discovered throwing petroleum upon the houses, and six members of the National Guard, who were dressed as paupers, and who threw petroleum on the fires instead of water, were shot in the Place Royale. There is no limit to the readiness that exists to kill the members of the Commune, and the leaders of the Guards taken were shot right off. The gasworks at Aubervilliers exploded. There are also many other explosions. The firing continues.

The Insurgents Driven from Point to Point and Slaughtered Without Mercy—Thousands of Prisoners Taken—Leaders Who Have Been Shot—Various Fighting at Paulin.

LONDON, May 26.—Paris dispatches announce that the Rue Royale has been destroyed by mines. The insurgents have been driven into the cemetery of Pere la Chaise, where they are surrounded, and must be captured. The Daily News' special dispatch mentions a rumor that the hostages in the Mazas Prison have been shot. The Liberté says the Foreign Powers have promised the extradition of the members of the Commune in the event of their escape from France. M. COURBET, a prominent Communist, has been shot by the Versaillists.

OUTSIDE OF PARIS, Friday Morning, May 26.—The cannonade against the insurgent position at Belleville has been vigorously resumed. Terrible fires are still raging inside of Paris. The Northern Railway has been repaired, but entrance to the city is still refused. The German positions at Aubervilliers and elsewhere have been strengthened, to prevent the escape of the insurgents. The Germans permit only the women and children inhabiting the burning quarters of Paris to leave the city.

VERSAILLES, May 26.—The insurrection has been crushed out in the quarter Montfaard of Paris, where 6,000 prisoners have been captured. The insurgents are still confined to Belleville and les Buttes Chaumont, whence petroleum shells are fired all over Paris. The following leading insurgents have been shot: VALLES, AMOREUX, BRUNEL, RIGAULT, DOMBOWSKI and BOUSQUET. The reported arrest of PYAT, DELESCLUZE and CLUSERET is yet unconfirmed. It is rumored that all the hostages held by the insurgents are safe, but nothing positive is yet known in relation to them. The following-named public buildings have been destroyed: The Palace of the Tuileries, the Ministry of Finance, the Prefecture of Police, the Court of Accounts, Palace of the Legion of Honor, the barracks in the Quay d'Orsay, the Hotel de Ville, and the Mont de Piete. The following have been saved: The Ministries of Marine, Interior, Foreign Affairs and Agriculture, the Pantheon, the Ecole Militaire, the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, the Bank of France, the Credit Foncier, and the churches generally. Marshal MCMAHON has sent to the insurgents a last summons to surrender, in which he says that all who may hereafter be captured with arms in their hands will be shot. The collections in the Louvre have all been saved except the library, in which a great many valuable books were destroyed. The National Library and the grand levree are safe. The insurgents still hold Bercy, the Place de la Bastille, Menilmontant, Charenne and Belleville. The Government troops have captured the Mazas Prison and the Lyons and Orleans Railroad stations. The hostages held by the insurgents in the Mazas had been transferred to the prison of Pequette. The insurgents have evacuated and blown up Fort d'Ivry. The Government forces are now attacking the Place de la Bastille. At noon today a furious battle was in progress near Paulin.

OUTSIDE OF PARIS, May 25—2 P. M.—The battle of Paulin continues. The insurgents are being attacked on three sides by the Government troops. Conflagration of Paris continues.

Dispatch from Mr. Washburne—American Property Safe.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The following telegram was received by Secretary FISH this evening from Minister WASHBURNE, dated today:

"There is fighting in remote parts of the city. Some new fires. Americans and their property all safe."

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

The British Parliament—The Returning German Army—A Compromise on Alsace.

LONDON, May 26.—In the House of Commons, last night, an amendment offered by the Opposition to the Army Registration bill, and intended to kill the bill, was rejected by sixteen majority. Mr. GLADSTONE announced that Parliament would adjourn for the Whitsuntide recess today. (Friday.)

BERLIN, May 26.—The Spener Gazette announces that the triumphal entry of the German Army into Berlin will take place on the 16th of June, and that the 18th of the same month will be observed as a day of thanksgiving throughout the Empire. Prince BISMARCK has agreed to a compromise upon the Alsace question, making the government of the conquered territory a dictatorship until 1873. The sanction of the Reichstag is, however, to be required for the raising of loans in Alsace.

FRANCE.

M. Jules Favre on the Treaty of Peace—The Payment of the Indemnity.

In the sitting of the French National Assembly, on May 19, M. JULES FAVRE presented the treaty of peace with Germany, which he moved should be referred to the Bureaux for examination. After dwelling upon the fatal effects of the insurrection which broke out on the 18th of March, and which had again placed everything in a state of uncertainty, he proceeded as follows: "Doubts were expressed as to our power to conduct our own affairs, and to restore the authority of the law. Even the final conclusion of peace had become doubtful; but we have succeeded in removing Prince BISMARCK's distrust, and in convincing him that France, having signed the treaty, was resolved to carry out all its provisions. The plenipotentiaries felt that in the interest of both countries it was necessary the treaty should be concluded. Unfortunately we were not able to shake off the heavy chains with which the Parisian insurrection bound us down. The insurgents are responsible for having rendered the position of their country worse than it was before. They have compelled the Germans to continue their occupation of the forts; but we will speedily restore order by force, and will hesitate before no measures which may be rendered necessary by the conduct of the insurgents. With regard to the other clauses of the treaty, they are the same as in the preliminaries. The second part of the war indemnity will be paid in three years; we have hastened the time for paying the first part, in order to free the country sooner from occupation by the Germans. The purchase of the railways for 250,000,000f will be taken into account in the first two milliards which we have to pay. The clauses concerning the treaty of commerce will, I trust, meet with careful consideration on your part. The Ministers will prove to you that we have obtained all that was possible. We have acquired a circle of only 10 kilometres round Belfort. Germany proposes to cede us the whole Arrondissement of Belfort in return for some territory which constitutes our frontier line in the direction of Luxembourg. You will have to consider this proposal." M. JULES FAVRE then read the text of the treaty, and added: "The payment of the first half milliard will be made after Germany has recognized the fact of order being restored in Paris. The payment of the second milliard will be effected on the 1st of May, 1872, and the last two milliards in May, 1874. The delivery of the war indemnity must be made in money, gold or silver, in notes of the banks of England, Prussia, Holland or Belgium, or in first-class bills. The Departments of the Somme, Seine-Inférieure and Eure will be evacuated at once, and the Departments of the Oise, Seine-et-Oise, Seine-et-Marne, and Seine et Marne, as the German Government considers order sufficiently restored, but only after the payment of the third half milliard. The German troops in France will not make any requisitions unless delays arise in the payment of the contribution for their maintenance. A reduction of the sum allowed them will be made when the strength of the German forces is reduced below 500,000 men. With regard to commercial relations, Germany will be treated on the same footing as the most favored nations—namely, England, Belgium, &c. The Germans who have been expelled from France will be restored to the possession of their property and to the rights of domicile on French territory. The French prisoners in Germany will return to France; those who are no longer liable to military service will return to their homes, and the others will re-enter the army, but not to exceed 80,000 men before Paris. The garrison towns in the Departments to be occupied; 30,000 men will be sent to Lyons in order to proceed to Algeria. The remainder of the army will remain behind the Loire."

After-Incidents of the Commune's Fall—The Government of the Future.

From the London Times, May 16.

With the fall of the Commune the reconstruction of the Constitution becomes an urgent necessity. Unfortunately the faults in the political character of the nation which have made the existence of the Commune possible will not disappear because the Commune itself has passed away. It is the misfortune of France that the idea of constitutional progress has never sunk into the minds of the people, and it is repudiated by political theorists whose devotion to the necessities of logic, as understood by themselves, will not allow them to consent to institutions which fail in practice to realize perfectly their own principles. For ages content to take a lower form of political organization with a resolute intention to make it approximate more closely to their ideal Constitution. An impatience of slow progress, and a consequent resentment of compromise, constitute the standing difficulty in the progress of France. The yearnings after order and peace of a nation wearied by dissension and disaster appear just now to support a movement in favor of HENRY V., and it is even said that the Assembly of Versailles is prepared to accept him as King. We cannot but regret the growth of a movement which could not, under any circumstances, give a promise of stability, and which would, too probably, provoke instant outbursts of violence if an attempt were made to consummate it in the manner indicated by report. The Comte DE CHAMBORD has never shown any disposition to abate one tittle of his hereditary pretensions. In the manifestoes he puts forth from time to time he declares that he is waiting for the moment when France shall return to him, and he consistently treats his own authority as something derived from a higher sanction, against which the people have enfeebly, if ignorantly, rebelled. The hope that such a representative of the Legitimist idea could become the head of a constitutional Government seems exceedingly precarious. The circumstances of his birth and education have revived in HENRY V. the spirit of his grandfather, and those who think he might be content to play the part of LOUIS XVIII. as a precursor to the succession of the younger line would too probably find that he faithfully reproduced the obstinate errors of CHARLES X. The character of the Comte is the great obstacle to a scheme for reuniting the two branches of the family of BOURBON, which might otherwise be feasible in itself, while offering France the means of achieving a Republic under the forms of constitutional monarchy. But, while we hold a Legitimist revival to be difficult and dangerous under any circumstances, we believe it would be fatal if attempted by the present Assembly. It is understood that the Assembly was not elected with any intention that it should undertake constituent functions. Its members were, indeed, chosen under such conditions, while a large part of France was still in the occupation of the enemy, and the whole country was paralyzed by the reaction from the enormous strain of the defence, that it is most desirable it should be dissolved at the earliest possible moment. A new election would not only install an Assembly invested with full authority; it would be a powerful agent in healing the divisions of France. Many of those who would resist the Monarchical tendencies of the present body would acquiesce in a similar course on the part of its successor if specially chosen for the purpose of determining the future constitution of the country. Even if the new Assembly were to call upon the Comte DE CHAMBORD to amend the Charter, he might be permitted to make the experiment. We shall not, however, believe that the political wisdom of France, imperfect as it is, can suggest nothing better than a Legitimist restoration until a Legitimist restoration is effected. If this is to be the mode of escape from existing disorders, it can only prove the first stage in a recurrence of the old cycle, ending again in disorder. After more than half a century, the dreary round will be again begun, for the reconciliation of authority and freedom will still be unsolved.

Movements in the Catholic Church—Doellinger's Friends and Foes.

The following, says the German Correspondent, are the most important events which have lately occurred in connection with the movement in the Catholic Church. The New Dogma was proclaimed at Bayreuth on the 21st ult., together with the excommunication of all who had signed the Munich address to the Government of the 10th of April. On the following day a letter of thanks to Dr. DOELLINGER for his opposition to the dogma, and a declaration approving of the Munich address, both of which were signed by numerous Catholics, were transmitted to him in Wurzburg and Passau similar declarations are being signed. The Augsburg address has received 900, and that of Kronach 123 signatures. The first series of addresses to the King of Bavaria in favor of Dr. DOELLINGER are said to have received more than 10,000 signatures. On the other hand, the many thousand signatures appended to the declaration of Dr. DOELLINGER have appeared, and are still in the course of preparation. Those which are already published have for the most part proceeded from the clergy, who protest against the assertion that "thousands of priests" are opposed to the definition of the dogma. The supporters of this doctrine of infallibility assert that more time is required to collect lay signatures, but some lay addresses have already been made public. The Vaterland gives a German translation of a Latin address presented to the Pope by the Catholic students of Wurzburg, in which, after referring to the compulsion of Rome by the Germans, they assure his Holiness of their unwavering devotion. The number of students who signed the document is not stated.

Sweden's Intentions and Prussia's Interests.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

Some sensation had been produced at Stockholm by the intelligence that Prince BISMARCK has called upon the Hamburg Senate to report whether the acquisition of the islands of Spitzbergen by Sweden would be advantageous or otherwise for the commercial and shipping interests of Germany. The news was a great surprise to the Swedes, and the intention of the Swedish Government to obtain possession of the islands in question had been hitherto kept secret. It now appears that the Government proposes to establish a colony in these islands for scientific purposes. And that it has notified its intention to England, Germany, Russia, France, Denmark and the United States. A meteorological and magnetic observatory is to be erected there, and in order to obtain the necessary security and control the whole territory is to be placed under the Swedish rule. This project is connected with the Arctic expedition, which is to proceed in Summer from the northern coast of Spitzbergen, under the direction of Prof. NORDENSKIOLD, with the object of penetrating as far as possible in the direction of the North Pole.

A Hot Day in the City.

The hot weather has fairly set in. Early yesterday morning the change was evident even to those asleep; bed-coverings were restlessly kicked aside, and in many cases, even with this relief, sleep was impossible. As the day advanced the heat became more intense; and as to add to the misery, it did not seem to have a corresponding effect upon the thermometers, which were obstinate enough to stay at a comparatively temperate point. Indeed, a strange irregularity seemed to manifest itself in everything connected with the weather. Instead of being cool in the shade, it seemed as if the oftener atmosphere attracted all the heat, and it was necessary to go out into the sunlight to dry the "dear'd unpleasant moist body." Those who suffered most, perhaps, were the active business men in the narrow streets; and it was pleasing to notice the delighted expression that would overspread the features of these unfortunates when they felt a cool breeze draw up from some basement they were passing.

Up-town the effect of the heat seemed to be to keep most persons in their houses; and the streets and retail stores were but scantily filled. Through the afternoon the city was overcast, and many were the anxious and perverted glances cast toward the west, in the hope that the wished-for shower would soon come; but it was a false hope, for as fast as the clouds gathered the sun dispelled them, and at midnight the stars were shining through the still hot air. This would be difficult to endure, were it not for soda-water, ice-cream, and other chilling remedies that were consumed during the day; but the jaded condition of the clerks at the popular apothecary-shops last evening indicated that their labor had been constant and severe. The press of custom did not appear to subside as much as the human race; doubtless on account of the extreme humidity of the atmosphere. From present indications, it would seem that we are to have another disagreeably hot day, though in this it is difficult to prognosticate, as an hour may bring about an entire change.

OVERCOME BY THE HEAT.

PATRICK ROACH, aged twenty-six years, was found at 6 o'clock last evening, in Church street, prostrated by the heat, and was taken to Park Hospital.

DENNIS FITZGERALD, aged thirty-eight years, who had no residence, was suddenly taken ill, last evening, in the store No. 347 Spring-street, and was taken in charge of Officer BROWNRICK, of the Twenty-eighth Precinct, to be taken to the Station-house, but died before reaching there. The Coroner was notified.

Decoration Day Preparations.

The following circular has been issued to the Posts of the Grand Army of the Republic in the Department of New-York:

Attention is hereby called to the action of the National Encampment held in Washington, D. C., May 11 and 12, 1870, designating the 30th day of May as a day of annual memorial services at the graves of our dead comrades. Posts of the Grand Army of the Republic will assemble at the graves in their several localities, and all loyal men, women and children are cordially invited to participate in the hallowed ceremonies; and it is hoped that no soldier's grave in this Department, however isolated or remote, will be neglected on this day of patriotic and Christian observance. Different posts, conveniently contiguous, are recommended to join in conducting these services. Detailed reports of proceedings will be made by post commanders to these head-quarters before the 10th day of June, for the purpose of publication in book form. Printed newspaper reports will also be forwarded at the same time when such are made. Posts are recommended to use the approved form of service accompanying this circular.

Comrades and Citizens: Five hundred thousand graves of patriot soldiers sanctify the soil of the country. They died to save. Your numbers, gentle embrace a few and some thousands unitely bespeak the Government's kindly care in the national repositories, while other thousands below the historic fields whereon was freely given life for country. Let your observance of this day be such as to carry solace to all war-bereaved relatives, and to the world give clarion-voiced assurance that patriotic deeds and sacrifices will ever be kept green in the memory of a people thereby saved and regenerated.

By command of H. A. BARNUM,
Department Commander.

Mr. B. W. THROCKMORTON will deliver the oration on Decoration Day in Forty Chly, at the graves at New-York Bay Cemetery and other places are to be decorated during the morning and afternoon. The oration will be delivered at 4 P. M. at the Reformed Church, Bergen-avenue.

Jones, of Montreal, are at the Gilsey House.

GENERAL NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

VENEZUELA.

Arbitrary Arrest and Threatened Execution of an Englishman—Wreck of a Schooner.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 26.—The British Consul at Maracaibo has just arrived here, bringing the intelligence that a wealthy Englishman, a brother of the American Consul at that place, has been arrested, placed in irons, and thrown into prison; and that is believed he will be shot, the Government refusing the applications of both the British and American Consuls for an interview with the prisoner. The British Consul declares that the arrest is unwarranted by any act committed by the prisoner.....The schooner Jane, from Maracaibo, for New-York, has been lost. The crew were rescued and brought to Kingston.

CANADA.

The Ottawa Fusion After-Mass Section Dissatisfaction With the Treaty.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 26.—The country around Ottawa is threatened with a repetition of the terrible fires of last year. The whole country around Pembroke, Chelsea, Buckingham and Gatineau Point is filled with dense clouds of smoke. The fires are spreading rapidly. Prof. BERNARD, of the High Commission, is in town, the guest of Sir JOHN A. MCDONALD.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 26.—The Sea-ship Royal Alfred, from Bermuda, with Admiral FARNHAM on board, arrived this morning. The rest of the fleet are expected soon; also the British flying squadron. The opposition journals are urging the Government to convene the Legislature, in order that the Treaty of Washington, as bearing upon the fisheries, may be discussed. The Chronicle of this morning has a very strong article denouncing the treaty.

RELIGIOUS CONVENTIONS.

Proceedings of the Young Men's Christian Association at Washington—Third Day.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 26.—In the Christian Association Convention, today, the Committee on Resolutions reported that it was inexpedient to adopt the following resolutions: First, relating to woman's work, as the same is covered in a resolution of the Portland Convention; second, relating to the use of tobacco; third, relating to Paris, as in the judgment of the Committee it is not within the jurisdiction of the Convention; fourth, relating to the erection of a common temple, as the plan proposed does not seem to the Committee to be sufficiently matured to admit of action upon it. The fifth resolution, in relation to the Sabbath-schools, is recommended for adoption. The resolution reads:

Resolved, That this Convention is deeply interested in all proper efforts made to promote the better observance of the Christian Sabbath; it therefore hails with pleasure the formation of all Sabbath associations, whose object is by moral influence, through personal effort, the pulpit and the press, to create a sound public sentiment upon this vitally important subject.

The sixth is recommended for adoption. It reads:

Resolved, That this Convention recognizes as a natural field of labor for the Master the large number of young men confined in the jails, penitentiaries and reformatory institutions of the land.

Mr. MCLEAN, from the Committee on the Executive Committee's report, submitted resolutions as follows:

That the Associations of the United States and British Provinces be and they are hereby requested to observe the second Lord's Day in November next as a day of prayer to Almighty God for a blessing upon the work of the Associations throughout the world, and upon all efforts for the salvation of young men; that the Executive Committee be and they hereby are instructed to request kindred societies in other lands to unite with the Associations of America in the observance of this day, and the Executive Committee be empowered to designate and accredit delegates to represent the Associations of the United States and British Provinces at the World's Conference of Associations in London, England, to be held next August; that the Executive Committee be instructed to carry out the last Convention in regard to the Monthly, and direct that its publication be continued.

The report of the Committee was adopted. Subscriptions for the support of the Association, amounting to $6,260, were received.

Upon the discussion of the money topic, President WANNAMAKER stated that he had no doubt that of the 100 associations which had disbanded during the year, at least nine-tenths had failed because of mistakes in management. Of the 176 associations on the roll, twenty-one own halls, and the one in which they were now holding this Convention was a monument of what an association could do. There was not a merchant present who would not be bankrupt in six months if he allowed his business to be managed as that of some associations have been managed. He spoke of the value of the Press—even if misrepresented at times. They should do the papers and can them; publish articles in relation to their work. He hurried that the fees should be low, so low that the poor might be able to become members. He would not condemn Fairs as a means of obtaining money, but his experience was that, when time and trouble were considered, they were expensive; and, with two exceptions, lectures failed in Philadelphia. The plan in that city was the subscription plan. He would have a good man, not one unable to retain a place in the counting-room, but a bright, active man who would thoroughly canvass the community and not rest until he succeeded. He cited a case in Philadelphia, where they started out to obtain $10,000, and at the last meeting the managers reported over $100 in excess of the amount. He would rely mainly on the subscription plan and urge them to stick to whatever plan they undertook, and not spend the money until it was raised.

Mr. FARMER, of Providence, Rhode Island, spoke on the money topic, saying they had been quite successful there, for by laying out the territory and working systematically it was interesting the people they enlisted the whole community.

Mr. HOLMES, of Auburn, N. Y., said his association had had experience in canvassing and getting money. He argued in favor of the subscription plan of the association for [illegible]. They had tried for ten years to get along and failed, but for two years they had been raising subscriptions to be paid in instalments, and by this means they raised three times more than before, and today were able to pay their debts of $60 for general purposes, and not $10 as in previous conventions.

Mr. NELSON, of New-Orleans, endorsed the remarks of the President, saying he had adopted the subscription plan in their city with success.

Mr. MCCOMB, of Elizabeth, N. J., related the experience of his association for a time, for a time, which seemed to be a religious [illegible]. They had, however, formed themselves into a finance committee, and, by waiting on the business men, they had enlarged their list and the [illegible] within two years, to have a $50,000 building. A resolution was adopted inviting the Knights Templars to seats on the platform, and, while they were taking seats the Convention sang "Sound Forth the Battle-cry."

The Presbyterian Assembly at Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 26.—In the Presbyterian Assembly today the following resolution was adopted:

That a telegraphic communication be sent by our officers in the name of the Assembly to the International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, now in session at Washington City, expressing to them our brotherly [illegible] with the assurance of our petition for [illegible] guidance and success in their efforts to promote evangelical religion, and to advance the standard of the Great Captain, under whose banner we are all enlisted.

Permission was granted J. H. WILSON, Esq., to address the body on the subject of masses for churches, but his remarks were interrupted by the anxiety to hurry forward to the order of the day, and the following resolution was adopted:

That the thanks of this Assembly be presented to Mr. J. M. WILSON for his [illegible] and self-denying labors in the securing of [illegible] for the comfort of the ministers of the Presbyterian Church.

The recommendations contained in the report of the Committee on Masses was taken up and adopted as follows:

First—That the Committee on Masses be continued.

Second—That the Presbyteries be requested to appoint a Committee on Masses to co-operate with the Assembly's Committee, who shall have charge of the matter within the bounds of their Presbytery, and the churches are instructed to aid in carrying out the wishes of the Assembly.

Third—That the Committee be authorized to prepare and publish when completed a detailed report of the results of their labors, with such suggestions as may be deemed useful; draw up specifications and plans for masses ranging in cost from $1,500 to $6,000; that a copy of the said report be sent to the Moderator and Clerks of the General Assembly of Synods, and to each member of the Committee on Masses of the Presbyteries, and 500 additional for the use of the Assembly's Committee in carrying out the object of their appointment.

Fourth—That the Treasurer of the General Assembly be instructed to pay for the necessary expenses incurred in the preparation, publication and distribution of the report of the Committee on Masses from the contingent fund of the General Assembly, not to exceed $1,500.

The report of the Standing Committee on Foreign Missions, the order of the day, was taken up and read. The mission year of the Board ended April 30, 1870, with a debt of $1,400,000. By the noble efforts of a few friends this debt was, in a great measure, provided for before the last General Assembly adjourned, so that the Board entered on the duties of the year now completed virtually free from debt, besides having at their disposition the sum required according to the estimates for the whole support of missions in India, Siam and Japan to the 1st of October, or five months in advance. The receipts from all sources for the year ending April 30, 1871, have been $930,650 39; the expenditures, $972,801 16, leaving a balance against the Board of $42,150 77. This unexpected result may be owing in part to the unanimous voice of the churches; in part to the depressed state of business in some parts of the country, and in part to the number of objects which have presented urgent appeals to the benevolence of our Christian people. Five thousand copies of pamphlets and 22,000 copies of our newspaper are now published. In expectation of enlarged sympathy and liberality of the Church, the Board has proposed its estimate and its plans for the coming year, approximating $925,000 for its different missions, which with the debt, calls for $967,000. This makes no allowance for any extraordinary call that may arise, or any special work that may be undertaken during the year, and as the missions are constituted new developments are constantly taking place that necessitate outlays that cannot be provided for in the estimates. The sum of $400,000 will be needed to maintain the work; on its present basis, in a healthy state. If the Board responds to the increasing demands of the different missions for speedy enlargement, and meets these and the new necessities that belong to such advance, in the way of buildings, &c., $60,000 more should be appropriated by the church.

Rev. Dr. HENRICK JOHNSON moved the following preamble and resolution:

That it be recommended that the first Wednesday of the sessions of each Assembly be devoted exclusively to the great work of foreign missions, and that the entire Church be urged to make the foreign missions on that day the subject of special prayer.

Pending the discussion of the resolution and the Committee report, the meeting adjourned till 2.30 P. M.

Non-Episcopal Methodist Conference.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 26.—The non-Episcopal Methodist Conference, by a decided vote, refused to authorize the ordination of females for the ministry. The Conference has decided to remove the Book Concern from Springfield, Ohio, to Pittsburg next September. ALEX. CLARK, has been re-elected editor; A. H. BASSETT, publisher, and an entire new Board of Publication has been elected.

JEFF. DAVIS STILL ABROAD.

The Champion of the Lost Cause in Augusta, Ga.—He Counsels Patience Under Wrong, but Refuses to Speak All that he Feels.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 26.—JEFFERSON DAVIS arrived last night, when he was serenaded at the Planters' Hotel, and today he held a reception. Mayor ERWIN tendered him the hospitalities of the city. In response to repeated calls and cheers Mr. DAVIS made his appearance on the balcony of the hotel, when he was introduced by Hon. HENRY W. HILLIARD. Mr. DAVIS said that he recognized the peculiar claims Georgia had upon him, and of himself upon Georgia, for in the ancient City of Augusta his father had identified himself with the Revolutionary struggle for liberty. If the late struggle for the principles of Constitutional liberty had been crimes, it was his misfortune, for which he had only suffered. Aware of the calumnies with which every word he might utter was watched for and misrepresented, he would be silent, not from apprehensions as to the result to him individually, but as his utterances were made to affect the interests of the Southern people. He did not conceive that the principles of the "lost cause" were dead, or that truth should remain crushed. He counseled fortitude and patience, believing that the South could afford to be patient under her wrong until a returning sense of justice achieved the rights of every freeman—a period to which he confidently looked. With his feelings he was fearful to trust himself to speak, because he could not think one thing and speak another. He looked forward, however, to a time when he might with propriety speak to his fellow-citizens as his heart moved him, and bade them farewell, expressing the hope that God would be with them.

Mr. DAVIS leaves for Atlanta to night.

THE VIRGINIA ELECTIONS.

A Light Vote—The Latest Returns.

RICHMOND, Va., May 26.—The returns from the State show that neither party polled its full strength, and that politics were strictly regarded in the township elections. The Republicans carried Charlottesville and Staunton. The city election returns were canvassed this morning, and show that the Conservatives have carried the city by 170 majority, and elected twenty-six out of thirty Councilmen. Two of the Conservative Councilmen were voted for also by the Republicans. In Lynchburg the Conservatives carried the city. In Petersburg the returns have not been completed. In Norfolk the Conservatives carried the Council. Twenty townships heard from show material political changes.

The Republicans have carried Petersburg, Va., electing seventeen out of twenty-four councilmen.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 26.—The Conservatives carry three of the four wards of this city by forty-six majority.

NORFOLK, Va., May 26.—The latest returns from yesterday's municipal election show the election, by small majorities, of twenty-one Conservative and seven Republican Councilmen, and four Conservative and two Republican Constables. Among other officers, the Conservatives elected the Treasurer, Attorney and Surveyor, and the Republicans elected the Collector and Street Inspector. R. B. GUIRY, Republican, was elected Collector by a majority of 200, this being the highest majority of any name on either ticket. The vote of one or two wards will be recounted, but it is not more than barely possible that the result, as here given will be materially affected.

HOSTILE INDIANS.

Desperate Fight With Wood-Choppers in Iowa—One White Man and Eleven Indians Killed.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, May 26.—A letter dated on board the steamer Ida Rees, May 18, gives the following particulars of the fight which recently occurred near Muscle-shell Mount between a party of wood-choppers and a band of Yankton Indians. The war party of the Yanktons came to the river a few miles above here a few days ago, and attacked three men belonging to a party of wood-choppers. The men ran to the bend in the river and concealed themselves in thick bushes, but their hiding-place was discovered, when a desperate fight took place, resulting in the death of one white man and eleven Indians. The reds numbered forty, and left six of their dead on the field of battle, not having horses enough to carry them off. The fight commenced at 2 P. M. and continued until dark. The men were intrenched in heavy under-growth and behind a large log, from which position the Indians found it impossible to dislodge them. The two survivors reached their camp in safety the next morning.

Progress of Resumption in the Mining Regions.

PITTSTON, Penn., May 26.—The men in the employ of the Pittston and Elmira Company, DAMON & BAWELEY, and the Butler Coal Companies, have resolved to resume work, at the same terms given by the Pennsylvania Company to their men, as soon as the operators will permit them to enter the mines. The only shaft remaining idle in this place is that of ALVA TOMPKINS, and resumption will probably take place on or before Monday next.

STEAM-BOAT EXPLOSION.

Six Persons Killed and Three Fatally Injured.

PORT HURON, Mich., May 26.—At the time of the explosion of the tug-boat E. H. Jones, yesterday, the crew were at dinner. The first engineer and six others were killed, and two badly bruised and scalded. There is little reason to hope for their recovery. The Captain was thrown from his chair at the dinner-table and high into the air, falling into the river. His injuries are severe. The second engineer is the only person that escaped unhurt. The hull and machinery and furniture were shattered to small pieces. Part of the wreck was found a quarter of a mile distant from the scene of the catastrophe. The Jones was a first-class tug, refitted last Winter. She was owned by THOMPSONS & WILSON, of Detroit. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but was probably a defect in the force pump which supplied the boiler. The body of JOHN MCGUIRE, one of the victims, has been recovered.

THE TURF.

Mared Rothschild Wins the Oaks at Epsom.

LONDON, May 26.—The race for the Oaks, 50 sovereigns each, half forfeit, for fillies, one mile and a half, the owner of the second horse to receive 300 sovereigns and the third 150 sovereigns out of the stakes. (176 subscribers.) came off at Epsom today, with the following result:

Baron Rothschild's b. f. Hannah, by King Tom, out of Mentmore Lass.....1
Mr. R. C. Naylor's b. f. Nobleness, by Stockwell, out of Brown Duchess.....2
Mr. A. Briggs' ch. f. Hopbine, by Dutiful, out of Rose of Kent.....3

Nine ran. The betting before the race was 5 to 2 against the winner.

Fifth Day of the Lexington Races.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 26.—The fifth day's races were well attended, though not as much interest was manifested as the previous days. The weather was hot and dusty.

FIRST RACE.—Produce Stake, two-mile heats, for three-year-olds. There were six entries, and three started.

John Harkness's b. f. War Girl.....1 1
Paul & Sons' brown colt.....2 2
Hunt Reynolds's ch. c. Harvey Wilson.....3 3

Time—3:54½, 3:51, 3:55.

SECOND RACE.—Mile and a half dash for three-year-olds, sixty purse of $200, entrance money wents with purses. There were six entries.

John M. Clay's ch. g. Glagan.....1
John Jackson's br. c. Gabertunzie.....2
J. W. McIntyre's ch. c.....3
Zeb. Ward's ch. g. Commerce.....4
A. Buford's b. f. Sallie.....dis

Time—3:53½.

The Point Breeze Races—Third Day.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—Today was the third and last day of the Point Breeze races. Notwithstanding the appearance of an approaching storm, there was a large attendance, the attraction being three races, the interest centering to the last, for which Mountain Boy, American Girl and Lucy were entered. For the first race, Fleetwood and Susie sold even, and 5 to 1 against the field. For the second race, Fanny Fern was the favorite against the field. For the third race, American Girl sold 100 to 30 against the field.

During the second race an accident occurred to JAMES MCGINLEY, the driver of Ruby. After a false start, making a short turn, the buggy upset, and the horse started on a run, the driver hanging on gallantly; but it being impossible to stop the horse in the space of half a length, lying on the track, while the horse kept on to the stable, making a wreck of the vehicle. Fortunately both driver and horse escaped without injury, and after the second heat of the first race again appeared on the track. Another incident occurred on the last heat of the race, while the horses were coming home on the homestretch, a man giving the name of JAMES SMITH ran on the track, throwing a linen coat before the Girl, but he failed in his object, as the mare kept steadily on. SMITH was arrested.

FIRST RACE.

For horses that have not beat 2:30; $800 to the first, $200 to the second, and $100 to the third. Eighteen entered, and seven started.

FIRST HEAT.—After several ineffectual starts the horses got off with Fleetwood in the lead, and ran fast, and past the half-mile post fully seven lengths ahead in 1:18, and won easily.

SECOND HEAT.—The horses got off well together; Fleetwood, slightly on the lead, was lapped by Susie at the quarter pole, and at the half-mile pole Fleetwood had a clear length ahead in 1:14. Susie passed, but Fleetwood broke, and was passed by Susie, when Fleetwood recovered quickly, and on the homestretch again took the lead and won the heat.

THIRD HEAT.—A good start, Bridget on the lead. She was soon passed by Fleetwood, who passed the half-mile pole ahead in 1:14. On the homestretch there was a beautiful start, Billy came up handsomely, passing Fleetwood and winning the heat by a shoulder.

FOURTH HEAT.—Fleetwood led, but was passed by Billy, and at the half-mile pole they lapped in 1:18, after which Fleetwood took the lead, but on the home-stretch Billy took the lead and won the heat by three lengths, Fleetwood breaking just before reaching the score.

FIFTH HEAT.—A good start, with Fleetwood ahead; Billy soon took the lead and passed the half-mile pole in 1:17, and won the heat.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION. By THOMAS CARLYLE. Vol. I.

This is a continuation of the beautiful little edition of CARLYLE'S works, now being published by SCRIBNER & Co. The work is printed in clear type, neatly bound, and may be had for ninety cents a volume—a triumph of cheapness. People who have not read CARLYLE'S French Revolution have a great treat in store for them—it is the book on the subject, and is probably the greatest historical work the century has produced. A great writer boasts that he has read it through sixteen times, and it will bear that test as well as ANY book in the language. We recommend this series to all classes as the best and cheapest now issuing from the press.

ALFRED THE GREAT. By THOMAS HUGHES, M. P. Boston: JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co.

This volume presents a two-fold attraction. It gives an account of the life and achievements of the greatest of England's early monarchs, and therefore fills an important place in historical literature; and it is written by a man whose works are at all times looked for with eagerness in America, on account of the earnest in which he is universally held, not only as an author, but as a faithful and honest friend of the country. It is a fortunate thing when a subject about which people ought to read falls into the hands of a writer whose productions are always sought for. Mr. HUGHES could have no fitter theme by which to connect his own name with the history of his country than the life of the great and good Saxon King, and the record of an important era when the history of the English people was the history of the common ancestors of all who now speak the Anglo-Saxon tongue. Of the manner in which he has done his work it is needless to speak. Suffice it to say that the events of those early times are set before us in a vivid light, and the achievements of ALFRED in all their bearings and consequences are sketched in a clear, vigorous and interesting style. The volume, which is of convenient size and elegantly printed, contains a map and several fine illustrations.

THE LIFE OF MAJOR JOHN ANDRE. By WILLIAM ABBOTT SARGENT, New-York: D. APPLETON & Co.

This biography of ANDRE, which first appeared some years ago, is republished now, that it may serve in some measure as a memorial of the gifted author, who died a few months since in the very prime of life. It is one of the most complete and careful bits of personal history in existence, and has a decided value for every reader of our revolutionary annals. Its style is lively and entertaining, and the notes give a slight hint of the really rich store of historical information gathered by the author in his youth. In type and mechanical execution the volume presents a handsome appearance, and contains an elegant steel portrait of the author, which will add greatly to its value for those who knew him.

HITE. By MARY E. WALKER, M. D. New-York: Sheldon & Company.

Dr. MARY E. WALKER deals in this volume, from her own peculiar stand-point, several questions of real importance in social reform, and it is no more than fair that what she has to say should be respectfully listened to. She deals with "Love and Marriage," "Dress Reform," "Tobacco," "Temperance," "Woman's Fradeities," and other topics of a similar nature, in a manner not altogether wise and philosophical, perhaps, but one that shows an honest desire to effect what she conceives to be reform and improvement in the condition of society.

THREE RADICAL GIRLS. By JULIA CROUCH. New-York: HURD & HOUGHTON.

In this volume is told the story of three country-bred girls who set out into the world with a earnest determination to accomplish something. After going through the inevitable experience of hope and disappointment, they finally win success, one in literature, one in art, and one in domestic life. The lesson of the book is salutary and one that girls of this day have need of—that a steady purpose and engrossing effort are no more unbecoming to them than to the hardier sex, and that in the end they may gain a success worth striving for. The style of the book is quiet, but interesting and attractive.

TEN GREAT RELIGIONS: An Essay on Comparative Theology. By JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE. Boston: JAS. R. OSGOOD & Co.

This book of Dr. CLARKE'S will be found very useful and interesting to that large class of readers who desire to know something of the history and characteristics of the great systems of religion which have flourished in the world, and have not the time or inclination to go through the vast amount of study and research necessary to gain information concerning them from the old original sources. The work of research is here done for them, and the results set forth in moderate compass and in a clear and forcible manner. The ground which the work is intended to cover is well expressed by the author. "It is," he says, "an attempt to compare the great religious of the world with each other. When completed, this comparison ought to show what each is, what it contains, wherein it resembles the others, wherein it differs from the others, its origin and development, its place in universal history; its positive and negative qualities, its truths and errors, and its influence, past, present, or future, on the welfare of mankind." A book that attempts to show all this is certainly worthy of attention, especially when written by a scholar so competent for the work as Dr. CLARKE. All the information which most readers will want on the subject will be found in this volume. The closing chapter contains an interesting comparison of Christianity with the other religions which have prevailed to a greater or less extent in the world.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF HENRY, LORD BROUGHAM. Written by Himself. Vol. I. New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

This autobiography of the famous English orator and statesman has been so liberally announced, that on its appearance it scarcely needs an introduction to the public. Of course no living man is to be criticised for the way in which it is prepared, as the noble lord left strict injunctions that it should be printed as he wrote it. His career, as every one knows, was a very interesting one, and surely no one could tell the story in a more entertaining manner than himself. The entire work is in three volumes, and that which has already appeared brings the narrative down to 1811, when the author was thirty-four years of age. It therefore covers the period of his youth and early success in literature and politics. The literary and historical reminiscences with which the volume is replete, give it a permanent value, and make it attractive to almost all classes of readers.

CONDENSED NOVELS. By BRET HARTE. Boston: JAMES R. OSGOOD.

Attempts have been made heretofore to parody the style and caricature the peculiarities of eminent writers in short sketches and imitations, and a notable instance will be remembered in THACKERAY'S Novels by Eminent Hand; but no attempt of the kind since then has been more cleverly executed than this of BRET HARTE'S. His imitation of the language and style of well-known novelists is exceedingly well done, while the caricature of the situations and incidents of their works, especially when they verge closely on the improbable, not to say the impossible, is ludicrous in the extreme. The reputation which the author has attained as a humorist will by no means suffer from the publication of this new work.

NEW MAGAZINES.

Through the medium of a pastoral little story with which Lippincott's Magazine for June opens, "Quida" has succeeded in awakening a kind of interest which has seldom hitherto attached to her writings. No sensationalism mars the delicate thought and tender sentiment expressed in the sketch of a "A Provence Rose." The plan of the brief narrative is quaint and original, and the descriptions are tinged by the play of sweet and subtle fancy. Mr. GEORGE H. BOKER contributes some poetic reflections for which well-known lines by DANTE furnish a text. The main paper contains a brief summary of the ills to which unprotected "shopping" females are subjected abroad. This article is, perhaps, rather one-sided, and fails to consider how troublesome people are who "go a shopping" for mere idle amusement, and how abused European shopmen are to such customers. Passing from this subject Miss HOOPER gives some amusing details of Parisian life, and shows how the world may change in the space of a few years. Although the matter is purely ephemeral, it is rather entertaining. Mr. STRAHAN POWERS offers a pleasant and rather odd illustration of the German system of lectures, and Mr. EDWARD KEMBLE contributes some verses descriptive of "The Monarch of the Gila," which will not add to his reputation as a poet. A short story, well told by FLORENCE MARRYAT, entitled "Still Waters," next claims attention. It treats of incidents in domestic life, and shows in the writer a talent for investing very ordinary characters with vitality and interest. Additional chapters of "Wild Ireland" display the Professor of Botany, together with Father Michael and the unsophisticated Peggy, in a very humorous light. Discussions of subjects of intrinsic and national interest are revived with advantage by Mr. HOOPER in a paper called "The Freedman's Bureau." Sir CHARLES YOUNG concludes his brief romance of "The Murder Stone," and introduces some powerful scenes of miseries and crimes which too often find their counterpart in real life. Under the title of "Secretangilism in Virginia," Mr. ELDER draws a rather uninviting picture of the present domestic life of the Southern people. The modifications and opinions evolved by Miss ELIZA ARCHARD, in her chapter called "At the Beginning of Summer," are felicitous and suggestive in a high degree. To those who have perused the writings of Mr. LOWELL with that admiration which they usually command, the article devoted to him will appear not only strange, but in some particulars unjust. It is a difficult task to criticise a critic, and one in the fulfillment of which the present writer does not appear to advantage. The Monthly Gossip contains graphic and readable sketches of life in Rome, Bonapartism, and entertainments in the time-honored palace of Holyrood; and the serial supplement, affords additional chapters of "Rockstone."

Other Books Received.

—English, Past and Present. By RICHARD CHENEVIX TRENCH, D. D. New-York: CHARLES SCRIBNER & Co. A revised edition of a well-known book, first published in 1855. It is in a neat and convenient volume.

—A Medico-Legal Treatise on Malpractice and Medical Evidence. By JOHN J. ELWELL, M. D. New-York: BAKER, VOORHIS & Co. This work, which has long been regarded as the standard in its important department of legal study, has been enlarged and carefully revised by the author, and has a greater value than ever, both to lawyers and to general students of social and political economy.

—The Alabama Claims and Their Settlement. By CHAS. C. BEAMAN, Jr. This volume is a timely contribution to history, since it gives a review of all the events which gave rise to the Alabama claims and has attended the endeavor to bring about an adjustment, as well as the principles on which they are founded. The facts and information which every one needs to understand the great controversy are clearly set forth.

THE WAR IN CUBA.

Gloomy Views Against Spain—Progress of the Revolution—Increasing Influence of the Negro—Manuel Quesada—Boldness of Lesseundi's Foresight—Scandals of the Judiciary—Miscellaneous Gossip.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Wednesday, May 17, 1871.

The question of the mixed Commission to decide claims of Americans against Spain, caused by the present war in Cuba, continues to occupy the Press, and is the general topic of conversation. The Spaniards speak of it as a kind of defeat, and discuss the subject in a cool manner. The Cubans, on the contrary, look on the appointment of this Commission as a great moral victory, and as the first step taken by the United States toward recognizing the insurgents as belligerents; meanwhile the more suspicious view it as the inaugural measure toward annexation, or as it undoubtedly would be, absorption. The Anglo-Saxon stomach, the healthiest in the world, can easily swallow a few Cubas, St. Domingos or Mexicos, and not feel as if it had eaten anything; because the peoples of these countries are exceedingly light dishes for a growing giant like the United States. Some fat bones they become annoying, but never of sufficient importance to cause any serious disturbance, and are not of sufficient size to stick in the throat. The correspondence from New-York of the Diario and Voz de Cuba relates mainly to the commission business, and the letters of the correspondents contain the Washington correspondents of the TIMES of the 7th and published on the 8th in full. The rapidity with which the Commissioners were appointed astonished the Diario correspondent, and he askes the readers of the Diario to read the TIMES correspondence with great care and slowly, so as to understand the grave and transcendental question. The Voz de Cuba correspondent afterspeaking of the English Hall Commission says, first "after this the following (the TIMES correspondence) will be regarded as [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. FORSTEAD cannot have any meaning. The claims which Spanish citizens may have—and they ought to be heard [illegible] as American citizens—remain completely unrecognized, while Mexico and England are [illegible] to those of their creditors. Besides the [illegible] millions of dollars, see the debts [illegible] millions."

[illegible] course, such a system, or rather the debts [illegible] do not really amount to a million of dollars. If the correspondent could only see the devastated camps of the Cinco Villas, Central and Eastern Departments, he would soon convince himself that the damages done to the property of Americans, either native born or naturalized, represented much more than a million of dollars. But the Commission to investigate this matter is undoubtedly as able to judge of the real amount of damages as the correspondent in question, because they are in the same condition, being compelled to decide according to the testimony produced.

PROGRESS OF THE REVOLUTION.

While this business is being discussed in Washington, the revolution continues, with a painful slowness and a steadiness in destroying everything which can be destroyed, which admits of no argument. The country from Trinidad toward Cape Maisi is converting itself, by slow but sure degrees, into a wilderness, and the inhabitants into savages or semi-barbarians. The latter title can be applied to the better classes of whites, and the former to the lower classes of the whites and to the negroes. People often wonder at the tenacity and valor displayed by some of the Cuban bands, but it becomes plain when it is known that these bands are mainly composed of negroes and deserters from the Spanish Army. The latter number about fifteen hundred serviceable men, and many of these, previous to becoming defenders of the fatherland, had already done signal service to their country as public benefactors, by keeping Judges busy first, and afterward repairing the common highways as inmates of the Penitentiary and members of the chain-gang. Their lives are already forfeited, and a sure death awaits them if they fall into the hands of their countrymen, having nothing to lose, they will fight desperately. The negro, however, is the real arbiter of the destiny of Cuba. He has tasted the sweets of liberty, free Cuba is his God and his all, and hatred to the Spaniard the only thing which he understands, and which to him is more than an idea, and actually a fanatic faith. To fall into the hands of the Spaniards is synonymous to becoming once more a slave, to be overworked, ill fed and cruelly punished, if he fails to obey or ill pleases the slightest behest of his task master. If the negro element could be removed from the Cuban ranks, the revolution would soon be at an end, because the remaining whites could not oppose a sufficient resistance to the Spaniards. Every day almost we hear of some Cuban officer, either civil or military, having surrendered to the Spaniards. We have yet to hear of a negro officer surrendering. And in proportion as the white leaders of influence resign, are killed, or leave the country, their places are in many instances occupied by negroes.

MUENGO, a negro chief, commands the principal insurgent body in the jurisdiction of Sancti Spiritus, and all inducements held out by the Spanish officials have been fruitless in gaining his surrender. His late companion, however, MONTEAGUDO, of Villa Clara, who was one of the principal inaugurators of the revolution in the Cinco Villas, and latterly a member of the so-called Republican Military Court, was in his heart blacker to the engagements he had taken toward his companions and countrymen, although he had a white face, and surrendered to VALMASEDA with eight men, they being all he could gather. MUENGO is the head of the Sancti Spiritus insurrection today, and he moves with marvelous rapidity from point to point, skirmishing, hiding and fighting. On the 6th he was near Sancti Spiritus; on the 9th he made a raid into the jurisdiction of Villa Clara, and on the 15th he was in the rear of the Spanish detachments guarding the military line. He loses men every day, because he hardly ever avoids an engagement; and yet his band remains about the same in numbers, because all the daring negroes and whites belonging to other bands join him. VALMASEDA would have announced that the territory of Sancti Spiritus was pacified and tranquil, and only the presence of this black prevents him from doing so. Quietness today may be converted into a hell by MUENGO to-morrow. ROLOFF, the Pole, VILLAMIL, and others, went to the Central Department. LIC PENA and LORDA are near Trinidad with a few men each, but MUENGO has men and refuses to leave his campingground, and the army of thirteen thousand Spaniards has not been able to catch or destroy this small party. The officers who went with LOPEZ are satisfied that he has made no [illegible] preparations for money, but when [illegible] laborers first in the chair, and next [illegible] that he refused to listen to him. [illegible] referred to the Board.

They dragged their victim out upon the platform, and were evidently intending to throw him off while the train was in rapid motion, but this the conductor prevented.

The Trenton Gazette says it has been assured by the highest authority that the rates of freight and passenger traffic agreed upon in the State of New-Jersey will be materially reduced soon after the consummation of the lease of the railroads to the Pennsylvania Central.

An old lady named YOUNG, in Old Lyme, Conn., dreamed thrice in succession that treasure was buried in a certain locality. She and her daughter went to the spot, dug for it and found it—not enough to make them independently rich, but enough to make them wonder what their dreams are made of.

An effort is being made in the West to establish at Lumberton, Wis., a National Home for deserving women of unexceptionable character and conduct who have no means of support. A hundred acres of land have been given for the purpose, ten of which are to be reserved for the buildings and grounds and the remaining ninety sold to raise funds to help carry it on.

THEODORE PARKER'S spirit, or some impostor claiming to be it, has told some Boston spiritualists that it will not be very long before LOUIS NAPOLEON is back again on the throne of France, "because it has been found that no other person can occupy it so advantageously for a people who are yet not fit for self-government."

The Democrats of West Virginia are willing. They refused to strike out the word white from their State Constitution, as applied to voters, but now, when they find that the word is also exclusively applied to those who have the glorious privilege of paying taxes, the word has become in their eyes very odious indeed, and they want a Constitutional convention held right away to remove such an objectionable discrimination on account of color.

The Richmond Whig is peering around for a very moderate man to be elected President. It says: "We of the South know and feel that the election even of JEFF. DAVIS to the Presidency in the present state of this country would not tend to promote its happiness and prosperity; it would put too many wounds to bleeding afresh. And for the same sort of reason an extreme champion of opposite views would be equally objectionable."

There is a novel law-suit in Chenango County just at present, brought by Miss EVANS against CURTIS COOPER, of Guilford, on a contract made fifteen years ago. The Fulton Times gives the particulars in these words: "Mr. COOPER agreed to give Miss EVANS one ewe lamb and its increase until she was twenty-one years of age, in consideration of a gold watch key. The suit was brought before Justice MEWHILL to recover the sheep or its equivalent. The evidence showed that the increase was to be in ewe lambs, and that the natural increase of a flock of sheep would double every year. According to this estimate Miss SUSIE would have at the end of fifteen years 16,064 ewe lambs, which, at $4 per head, would amount to $64,256. Justice NEWELL heard the evidence, and like a wise man reserved his judgment."

Some of the Canadian papers are still denouncing the treaty, which they contemptuously term the Washington castitulation. Prose and poetry are both brought to bear to express their indignation and sense of injustice, and their determination to die in the last ditch rather than yield "the grandest river in the world," and their fisheries. We quote some sample verses from the Toronto Globe:

Let Britain grant capitulate
To Samuel Grant, or Fish, for ease,
A guid gre one we'll have, or know
Why we must yield our fisheries.
Our ever Canadian fisheries,
Our ever Canadian fisheries,
Oh! they are slaves of braggart knave
Who would give up our fisheries.

Take coast for coast along the line,
Give border lands or what you please;
A bargain fair like's share for share,
Not Yankee sale for fisheries.
Our rich Canadian fisheries,
Our rich Canadian fisheries,
Shall not be sold for Yankee gold,
We won't give up the fisheries!

The Fenian claims are for more just
Than Alabama's ravages;
Unarmed the ship escaped; you armed
And cheered the cut-throat savages.
We won't condone the Fenian raids,
Nor sanction our wives;
Nor confiscate our fisheries,
No, never, never, never!

Extensive Smuggling—An Influential Firm Implicated.

On Thursday afternoon, WM. H. BEARE, of the firm of SMITH & BEARE, importers of dry goods, doing business at No. 61 Leonard-street,

[illegible] by United States Deputy Marshal [illegible] on a charge of smuggling into this City [illegible] worth of laces and [illegible]. Commissioner DAVENPORT committed him for examination in $15,000 bail. A civil suit was also commenced against him in the United States Circuit Court, and a bailable process issued. The suit was instituted to recover the value of the laces alleged to have been smuggled, and in this case [illegible] DAVENPORT fixed his bail in $60,000 bail. WM. J. BEARE, a brother of the [illegible], has also been arrested on the complaint of J. B. Elmor, to whom the goods were consigned, and who will become a Government witness.

"POLICE" UNCHAINED.

Simultaneous Descent on all the Station-houses in the City—The Police Courts Choked with the Prisoners—The Offenders Held for Trial at the Special Sessions.

A carefully prepared raid was made at noon yesterday by order of Superintendent KELSO upon all the "police stations" in the City, and the cells of the establishments were so generally filled as between the hours of noon and 2 P. M. yesterday. The proprietors had, with very rare exceptions, no warning of the impending movement, and were captured by the officers, who entered while they were immersed in their respective business. Agreeably to instructions, all the prisoners were taken before the several Police Magistrates at the Tombs, Jefferson Market, Essex Market, Yorkville and Harlem, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The arrests made in the several precincts were as follows:

1st	7	10th	19
2d	13	11th	8
3d	4	12th	22
4th	2	13th	24
5th	14	14th	15
6th	5	15th	24
7th	17	16th	24
8th	21	17th	7
9th	10	18th	12
		Total	261

The following were those arraigned before Justice DOWLING at the Tombs Police Court, the street number attached to the name being in each case the place where the business was carried on. Capt. KAMMEROT arrested the following in the Sixth Precinct:

Charles Fredericks, No. 134 Centre-street; William Tomblin, No. 86 Centre-street; Arthur Newbold, No. 128 Leonard-street; Henry R. Frost, No. 97 Park-street; James Lawrence, No. 77 Hayard-street; Frederick Clarke, No. 218 Canal-street; Jacob Lee and Emil Bantz, No. 164 Canal-street; William Robinson, No. 92 Chatham-street; Michael Goodman, No. 102 Leonard-street; Joseph Watzen and Henry O. Hartt, No. 154 Centre-street; Lewis W. John, No. 128 Chatham-street; Michael Drumany, No. 125 Chatham-street; James Shipsey, No. 82 Bowery; Benjamin Hertz, No. 45 Bowery.

In the Fifth Precinct, Capt. PERRY arrested the following: John Williams, No. 73 West Broadway; Thomas Connolly, No. 149 West Broadway; Charles Tillman, No. 205 Franklin-street; Samuel Arches, No. 30 Wooster-street; Garret Wallace, No. 58 West Broadway; Lewis West, No. 42 West Broadway; Sarah Graham, No. 166 West Broadway; Edward Luther, No. 496 Canal-street; John McIntyre, No. 216 Canal-street; Michael S. Hart, No. 240 Canal-street; James C. Downey, No. 242 Washington-street; Moses F. Coldoy, No. 210 Canal-street; Wm. Smith, No. 217 Duane-street; John Johnson. In the Precinct Nos. 119 West Broadway, 196 Franklin-street, and 121 Watt-street were found closed.

Capt. CHENEY, Third Precinct, produced: Henry Harris, No. 12 Hudson-street; George Leslie, No. 26 Hudson-street; Wm. Calvin, No. 56 Vesey-street; James Gallagher, No. 61 Rodney-street; John S. Lohr, Eugene Keller, Frederick S. Lucky, No. 240 Greenwich-street; Seymour Smith, No. 304 Chambers-street; Chas. Waldron, No. 102 Vesey-street.

Capt. SCHULTZE, Twenty-seventh Precinct, came in with seven names on his report, viz: Nathan, No. 4 Cortlandt-street; Thomas Lewis, No. 276 Dey-street; Dennis Sullivan, No. 2 Battery-place; Henry Smith, No. 189 Greenwich-street; George Delavan, No. 140 Greenwich-street; James Hogg, No. 176 Greenwich-street; Henry Stoner, No. 23 Baxter-street.

Capt. ULMAN, Fifth Precinct, captured all the shops in his jurisdiction, with their proprietors, as follows: J. B. Martinez, No. 19 Wall-street; Joseph Bates, No. 35 Wall-street; David Slade and James Smith, No. 30 Pine-street; James Black, No. 45 Whitehall-street; Adam Hasselmeier, No. 19 Stone-street; John Smith, No. 67 Whitehall-street.

Capt. WALSH, Fourteenth Precinct, had twenty-six in his Precinct, and captured twenty-five as follows: Peter Thomas, No. 233 Elizabeth-street; Geo. Prince, No. 4 Prince-street; Horace Bill, No. 293 Mott-street; John Schwenstein, No. 131 Baxter-street; Isaac Church, No. 69 Broome-street; John Fox, No. 99 Elizabeth-street; John Glass, No. 496 Broadway; Henry Miller, No. 297 Centre-street; James Livingston, No. 146 Hester-street; Wm. Francis, No. 300 Bowery; C. B. Parker, No. 138 Crosby-street; E. B. Emmerson, No. 69 West Houston-street; Henry Miller, No. 1 Crosby-street; Philip Nolan, No. 181 Grand-street; Jos. Burr, No. 273 Bowery; Charles Willemer, No. 30 Marion-street; Jacob Simmons, No. 22 Spring-street; George Williams, No. 30 Spring-street; John Johnson, No. 30 Prince-street; William Farar, No. 6 Spring-street; Leopold Sewell, No. 149 Mulberry-street; George Wentworth, No. 30 Spring-street; Johnson Mitchell, No. 29 Marion-street; Alfred Lemotti, No. 1 Marion-street; Charles Keyser, No. 256 Canal-street.

Sergt. BLAIN captured the following in the Second Precinct: Jacob Clute, Edward Allen, Arnold Smith; Jos. Hartman, Philip Zoulle; Morris Murray, No. 64 Broadway; Ira Knapp, No. 274 Broadway; John Mooney, No. 1 Eaton-street; Jas. Cunningham, No. 126 Beekman-street; Jos. Blake, No. 174 Broadway; Smith Burrell, No. 113 South-street; Charles Wilson, No. 66 Gold-street; Edward Smith, No. 74 Maiden-lane; John Bishop, No. 3 Park-row; William Parks, No. 124 Fulton-street; John Anderson, No. 40 Peckslip; Jos. Dermer, No. 22 Peckslip.

Capt. ALLAIRE, Fourth Precinct, produced the following: Edward Stanton, No. 8 Madison-street; Timothy Shea, No. 207 Pearl-street; Frederick Williams, No. 19 Dover-street; Henry Walters, No. 190 William-street; Dennis O'Brien, No. 18 New Chambers-street; Richard Dunning, No. 2 Water-street; John Lund, No. 190 William-street; Samuel Doog, No. 281 Water-street; Jos. Christmas, No. 198 South-street; Chas. McBrien, Alfred George, Thos. Taylor, No. 42 Chatham-street; Michael Monahan, No. 261 Water-street.

With one exception all these persons were held in $200 bail each for trial at the Special Sessions. The exception was Mrs. GRAHAM, brought in from the Fifth Precinct, who, being the only woman, was discharged with a reprimand, Justice DOWLING while delivering it directing his eye to Ex-Alderman CHARLES MCBRIEN, who was among the prisoners from the Fourth Precinct, and who crowded among the prisoners in the crowded box. The pressure upon the clerks in taking complaints and bail bonds was so great that Justice DOWLING was compelled to call in a strong reinforcement to Mr. MCGUIRE and Mr. FINLEY, but even with this additional help the session of the Court was protracted to an unusually late hour.

At Jefferson Market thirty-two were arraigned by Capt. McDonnell, of the Eighth Precinct; nine by Capt. Washburn, of the Ninth Precinct; twelve by Capt. Caffrey, of the Twentieth Precinct; eighteen by Capt. McCarey, of the Twenty-eighth Precinct, and sixteen by Capt. Burdon, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct. The following is a list of the prisoners and their places of business: Francis Cochrane, No. 726 Christopher-street; Jacob Schroeder, No. 553 Hudson-street; Wm. Kent, No. 118 Thompson-street; James Hooper, No. 301 Thompson-street; John Farrell, No. 114 Thompson-street; Lawrence Farrell, No. 94 Lawrence-street; James Merrels, No. 8 Amity-street; Joseph Bates, No. 35 Wall-street; David Slade and James Smith, No. 30 Pine-street; James Black, No. 45 Whitehall-street; Adam Hasselmeier, No. 19 Stone-street; John Smith, No. 67 Whitehall-street.

Capt. WALSH, Fourteenth Precinct, had twenty-six in his Precinct, and captured twenty-five as follows: Peter Thomas, No. 233 Elizabeth-street; Geo. Prince, No. 4 Prince-street; Horace Bill, No. 293 Mott-street; John Schwenstein, No. 131 Baxter-street; Isaac Church, No. 69 Broome-street; John Fox, No. 99 Elizabeth-street; John Glass, No. 496 Broadway; Henry Miller, No. 297 Centre-street; James Livingston, No. 146 Hester-street; Wm. ...answered "Not." Verdict for defendant. Field, Jr., with David Dudley Field for plaintiff; Delancey Nicoll for defendant.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART II.—MAY 26.

Before Judge Monell and a Jury.

SUPPRESSION OF PROPERTY—RIGHT OF SUIT IN THE UNITED STATES.

Charles D. Lord vs. Agnes Dunbar.—This was an action to recover $5,000 as the value of certain property, consisting of distillery fixtures, &c., which the plaintiff claims were wrongfully taken by defendant. It appeared on the trial that one Mollenhauer, as far back as 1870, carried on the business of a distiller at No. 60 West Thirty-second-street. In November of that year he gave a chattel mortgage, which was assigned to plaintiff on Feb. 4 1871, to secure the United States Government and had a claim against the distillery for an unpaid assessment of about $1,000. Defendant, as Collector, seized the property in the name of the United States Government, having been directed so to do by the Marshal acting for the Government. Second—Defendant having seized the property under process issued by the United States Government, plaintiff had no right to institute proceedings in this Court for the recovery of the property, and the action should be dismissed. Third—The property was not taken until after judgment was rendered in favor of the United States Government, and the defendant is not liable. After argument, Judge Monell reserved his decision, and directed the case to be submitted to him. After the argument of counsel the Court rendered a decision in favor of the defendant. Judgment was ordered accordingly. Clinton Southard and Mr. Levy, for plaintiff; Chauncey H. Beaver for defendant.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

A Versailles dispatch of Thursday says no quarter is given by the victors, and even sympathizers with the insurrents are shot at once. The same dispatch says Communists, disguised as firemen, under pretence of extinguishing the flames, poured pails of petroleum on the burning buildings. The following public buildings have been destroyed: The Palace of the Tuileries, the Ministry of Finance, the Prefecture of Police, the Court of Accounts, the Palace of the Legion of Honor, the Barracks on the Quay d'Orsay, the Hotel de Ville, and the Mont de Piete. The following have been saved: The Ministries of Marine, Interior, Foreign Affairs, and Agriculture; the Pantheon, the Ecole Militaire, the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, the Bank of France, the Credit Foncier, and the churches generally. The collections in the Louvre have all been moved except the library, in which a great many valuable books were destroyed. The National Library and the grand livres are safe. Marshal MACMAHON has sent to the insurgents a last summons to surrender, in which he says that all who may be hereafter captured with arms in their hands will be shot. The insurgents still hold Bercy, the Place de la Bastille, Montmartre, Charonne and Belleville. They have evacuated and blown up Fort d'Ivry. A battle was in progress near Pantin, yesterday, with a prospect of surrounding the Communists.....The British Ministry was sustained by 16 majority on a division, yesterday, on the Army bill in the House of Commons.

GENERAL.

A wealthy Englishman, brother of the American Consul at Maracaibo, has been arrested there, placed in irons and threatened with execution, a proceeding which the American and British Consuls regarded as unwarranted by any act of the prisoner. They have both been refused an interview with the captive.

The municipal elections in Virginia, on Thursday, show that neither party polled its full strength. The lines were drawn strictly on party grounds.

The miners of the Pittston and Elmira Company and the Butler Coal Company have resolved to resume work at the rates paid by the Pennsylvania Company. The only idle shaft on the Pittston region is that of ALVA TOMPKINS, and that will probably be in operation on Monday.

The Methodist (Non-Episcopal) Conference in session at Pittsburg, Penn., yesterday, by a decided vote, refused to authorize the ordination of females for the ministry. They also decided to remove the Book Concern from Springfield, Ohio, to Pittsburg, in September.

JEFFERSON DAVIS was serenaded at Augusta, Ga., on Wednesday, and made a speech advising the Southern people to wait with patience "until a returning sense of justice schieved the rights of every freeman."

The United States Senate yesterday, before going into Executive Session, spent some time in discussing the resolution for the discharge of the refractory witnesses, WHITE and RAMSDELL, at the close of the session, but did not reach a vote on the question.

The Presbyterian Assembly, at Chicago, yesterday adopted the recommendations of the Committee on Measures. The report on Foreign Missions was read, and showed that during the last year $330,550 39 were collected, and $373,201 18 expended.

At the Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, at Washington, yesterday, which authorizes the appointment of delegates to the World's Convention, to be held in London next Fall. Means of raising money and other general matters were discussed.

Treacherous Legislation.

We presume there is little danger, after the revelations that have been made during the last few weeks, that Gov. HOFFMAN will put his signature to the bill which purports to have passed the late Legislature amending the Code of Procedure; though why he should hesitate any longer to let the public know what he intends to do, it is difficult to imagine. Now that the Legislature has adjourned, and the bill cannot be vetoed in the usual way, it is not legally incumbent upon the Governor to give the public any reasons for his not signing it; and it is probably asking too much that he should volunteer these reasons, when the best and most conclusive of them all would be that the leading provisions of the bill never passed the Legislature at all, but were fraudulently smuggled into it by leading members of his own party. But the Governor would not be without precedent, in his own previous action, if he were to make frankly to the public what he thinks of this bill, and the reasons why he cannot sign it. He has done so on several occasions before, with bills that he signed and those which he refused to sign after the adjournment; and on one occasion he gave as a reason for not signing a bill, (chartering the "Metropolitan Railroad Company," passed in 1866,) that there were irregularities attending its passage through the Legislature amounting to a suspicion of fraud.

It is certainly competent for the Governor, and would be in the line of his legitimate duty, to inquire into the circumstances attending the passage of this bill amending the Code, and, by examining witnesses, or otherwise, to satisfy himself whether fraud was committed and, if so, who committed it. There is not much likelihood, however, for the reason above intimated, that Gov. HOFFMAN will adopt such a course, and therefore we recommend that the matter be taken in hand by the Bar Association of this City, and that it be probed to the bottom. Let every member of the Conference Committee appointed on the bill be examined as to what the bill did or did not contain when it passed out of their hands; let the Clerks of the two Houses be examined as to what sections were read, or left unread, by them on its final passage; let the bill be traced, after its passage, to the engrossing-room, and let it be found out what changes were made in it there, or on its way there. In a word, let the guilty party or parties who fraudulently inserted the outrageous provisions of the bill be forever found out, if possible, and, if there is any way of punishing them, let them be punished to the full extent of the law. The honor of the legal profession, no less than the public safety, demands that this infamous fraud should be thoroughly exposed and its perpetrators brought to an account; and the Bar Association is the most competent and proper body to do it.

The business of fraudulent legislation at Albany has gone quite far enough, and it is time it was stopped. As long as the Tammany "Ring" confined themselves to legislation designed to enhance their power, or fill their private pockets, people outside of the City cared very little whether the acts were legal or fraudulent, knowing that they were bound to rule and rob the City in any event; but, in attempting to smuggle this Code Amendment bill into the Statute Book, they have struck a blow at the rights and liberties of the people of the whole State. Emboldened by their success in manufacturing spurious laws for the Metropolis, they now seek to extend the system to the rural districts. The editor of the Ithica Journal, Hon. JOHN H. SELKREG, one of the oldest, ablest, and purest members of the Assembly, calls attention in the last number of his paper to another fraud committed by the Democrats in the last Legislature, in order to enable them to get exclusive control of the funds appropriated for the construction of the new State Reformatory at Elmira. Mr. SELKREG, who was a member of the Committee of Ways and Means, says that an appropriation of two hundred thousand dollars was inserted in the Supply bill for the Reformatory, accompanied by a provision authorizing the Governor to appoint two Republican Commissioners to act in conjunction with the five Democrats previously appointed, to superintend the construction of the building. With this provision, the appropriation was concurred in by the Conference Committee, and in that shape passed both Houses; but when the Supply bill reached the Governor, it was found that the clause authorizing the appointment of the two Republican Commissioners had been stricken out. Mr. SELKREG says:

"We speak emphatically and what we know, when we say that the bill has been altered since it passed the Assembly, and, as the same copy was read in the Senate, it is clear it passed both Houses. We know still further from a personal examination of the bill after its concurrence by both Houses that the section was then in, but it is not in it now."

In the face of such examples of fraudulent legislation as the above, and the vastly more important one of the Code Amendments, it may seem trivial to refer to lesser swindles; but it is a well-known fact that the Supply bill of the last Legislature was literally crammed with illegal and fraudulent appropriations from the State Treasury. A host of personal favorites of TWEED, and friends of the "Ring," were put in the Supply bill under fictitious names as door-keepers, assistant door-keepers, messengers, engrossing clerks; and even pages drew from $400 to $900 each out of the State Treasury though they had never rendered any service whatever in such capacities, and some of them were not in Albany a week during the Winter. One case, which we have from the best authority, is worthy of mention. A gentleman nearly seventy years of age, arrived in Albany the day after the adjournment, and was so entirely unacquainted with the city that he had to inquire the way to the Capitol. He succeeded, at length, in finding the Clerk's room, and, on entering therefrom, some half an hour after, he walked triumphantly over to the Controller's office and drew $500 from the State Treasury on a certificate duly certified, that he had served as assistant door-keeper to the Assembly during the session.

Prince Bismarck's Task.

There are few statesmen who know themselves and their time sufficiently well to retire from the political stage at the proper moment. But the great Brandenburgher, whose life's task has been the unity of Germany, is no ordinary man. Prince BISMARCK can estimate better than any man living the strength of the disturbing forces which will shortly be released in German politics. The Empire is one and indivisible, beyond all danger of dissolution, but particularism is not dead for all that, neither is aggressive liberalism, nor unsatisfied democracy. The war closes one great epoch of German history, with which the name of the statesman of Schoenhausen is indissolubly associated. With the creation of the Parliament of the German Confederation opens another, in which the united kingdoms, duchies, and free towns of the Empire will reach, through the struggle of popular debate and party hostility, the unity of purpose and sentiment with which constitutional forms have already endowed them. The force of will and tenacity of purpose which fit Prince BISMARCK for political leader in a period of great national crisis, are adverse to his continuous influence with a representative Assembly. PALMERSTON, the statesman of tact expediency and laissez-faire, is the exact antithesis of BISMARCK, the embodiment of strong impulse and pronounced individuality. Already the German Chancellor has perceived the signs of the rising insubordination which, before the war of 1866, arrayed against him the entire Liberal opposition of the Prussian Reichstag. His bill for the incorporation of Elsass and Lothringen with the German Empire was amended by the Commission to which it was referred. On Thursday, the majority of the German Parliament showed some signs of accepting these amendments. Thereupon arose the Chancellor, and, in his outspoken, abrupt way, declared that the task to which his political existence had been devoted was nearly accomplished; his health was bad, and he had begun to long for his farm and his hunting; German arms had recovered the long lost provinces, and German statesmanship had contrived the means of their reincorporation; the representatives of the people must either accept his bill in its entirety, or accept the certainty of his resignation. Before a threat like this, the deputies yielded, and the bill was recommitted for restoration to its original shape.

It is of the most vital importance to Germany that the newly-acquired country between the Vosges and the Rhine should not become an Ireland or a Venetia. The question of successfully incorporating the restored provinces bristles, as Prince BISMARCK himself acknowledged, with difficulties. The way in which they were regained has been abnormal, so is the personality of the power which recovered them. "A confederation consisting of Sovereign Princes and free cities has made a conquest which it is obliged to retain for purposes of self-defense. The various States are therefore in common possession of the ceded districts." Six months ago, when the German demand for Alsace and Lorraine was first unmistakably declared, the question of their disposal was foreseen and discussed. The professor of history at Heidelberg published a treatise in which the provisions of Prince BISMARCK'S bill were pretty clearly foreshadowed. This authority declares that neither Bavaria, Baden, nor the grand duchy of Hesse could possibly assimilate the population of Elsass and Lotharingen, and that they were equally destitute of the political strength necessary to keep them in subjection. "The Prussian Eagle alone is able to keep his grip of what he has once pounced upon. In any weaker grasp, the border country would be but a temporary possession." Looked at as a question of internal safety, the Professor says, "Prussian territory must be wrapped like a protecting mantle round all our threatened boundaries from Wesel past Metz and Saar-louis, down to Strasbourg and Belfort. Prussia may not always be led by strong men. She certainly will not be led always by men of genius. The time may come when Prussian particularism, which is out of heart at present, may again say to itself, 'Is the shirt not nearer the skin than the coat? Is it absolutely necessary that North-Germany should always defend South-Germany?' It is in that view that we wish to bind Prussia to us by the only bond which is always sure in politics, the bond of its own vital interests."

The Prussian leaders have undertaken the task of making peaceful German citizens out of the turbulent and priest-ridden people of Upper Elsass, and they are resolved to stand no dictation in the matter, be it from Southern particularist or Northern liberal. It is probable that Germany will yet applaud their firmness, but it is clear, none the less, that the epoch of "blood and iron" is all but over, and that the dictation which has had its due season in the deliberative Assembly as in the field, must give place to the free play of debate, and the growing sovereignty of the popular will. Notwithstanding his antecedents, Prince BISMARCK is not the man to resist such forces, but he is equally not the man to direct them.

The Last Snake Story.

Why creatures of the serpent tribe should be so often selected as subjects of wondrous tales is not quite clear. Perhaps the prejudice that is as old as Eden inspires the choice; and no doubt the swift, elusive movement of the snake, together with the general disposition of mankind when he moves to get out of his way, promotes the mystery and exaggeration that are prone to attend him. At all events stories of these reptiles are usually of grander proportions than others of the zoological character, and the interior of New-York State, situated, as it is, we may suppose, by the humiliation of the "Cardiff Giant," is just now soliciting itself with a "Baldwinsville Snake." This monster has been seen, according to the Syracuse and other papers, at different times for several years past. He has commonly, however, exhibited a delicate reserve. In other words, he has been so seldom seen that his existence has been surrounded by that fine mythical element so agreeable to lovers of the marvelous, and so baffling to students of natural history. Of late he has grown less shy. A dozen trustworthy men, writes a correspondent of the Syracuse Journal, are ready to testify to having seen the creature. It is impossible, urges this gentleman, to meet the snake out of existence, or even to drive him into obscurity. One witness who "interviewed" him within a few days, gives a graphic and minute account of his person and manners. The observer was sitting on a log, on the west bank of a large mill-pond in Baldwinsville, at about 6 o'clock in the evening. This mill-pond is much affected by the snake, being accessible, it would appear, from adjacent running waters. Our witness was resting himself after the toils of the day, and with a mind free from all thoughts save of repose and peace, when suddenly he had the following "experience":

The waters of the pond first began to boil and bubble in a most inexplicable manner, as if a vast fire had been lighted below. There was little time for doubt as to the cause of the disturbance, for the next minute a grim, dark head appeared on the surface of the water, and moved swiftly toward the shore. Reaching a bank at a distance of twenty-five feet from its amazed observer, the snake worked himself out upon the land. He seemed about to push for the interior—possibly with intent to carry off a bullock or some other trifle for his daily meal—when a dog came along, barking loudly, in pursuit of a squirrel. The noise seemed to disturb the snake, who thereupon retreated again into the pond. Now, the individual who saw the monster had ample time carefully to inspect him, and as regards his size and appearance his report is explicit and positive. He asserts that the snake cannot be less than twenty feet long. This estimate is partly founded on the distance from the water of objects reached by the reptile when he emerged. In bulk he is compared to a "good-sized telegraph-pole," and in color he is "black, or nearly so, except along the under side, which is of a purplish tinge." Others confirm the extraordinary statement, even to minute details, so that it seems likely, if optical delusion has any share in the matter, that several persons must have been deceived at various times in the same way. The man who sends this information clenches it at the close by the satisfactory announcement that arrangements have been made with the owner of the serpent's haunt to put the matter to immediate test. After ample preparation, the pond is to be drained, when it is hoped its snaky occupant may be captured alive, and the reports concerning him thus be subjected to corroboration or refutal.

It is not surprising to hear that the agents of certain adventurous showmen are already on the spot, and that high figures are named for "an interest" in the snake should he be taken. The local journals say that the pond, which is about a mile south of Baldwinsville, is daily visited by crowds, and that the distances on the ground, whereby the informant named above calculated the length of the formidable reptile, have been measured by more than five hundred people. This, it must be confessed, is less conclusive than if they had seen the snake himself, but that delight, we are assured, is in store not only for them, but for all of us. We trust there will be no mistake about making prisoner of the monster alive. Should he be accidentally shot, or otherwise brought to grief, so that he must be introduced to the public in a lifeless condition, it will not be easy, we fancy, to persuade them that he was ever in any other. What with petrified giants and stuffed mermaids, provided with ingenious skill for balking investigation, the common stock of credulity is less abundant than of yore, and will need to be drawn on with tenderness and caution. Let the "Baldwinsville Snake" have his full share of attention and popularity, by all means; but let those who are interested, for their own sakes, as well as his, take all possible care that he lives to appreciate it.

Order in the South.

When a Democratic journal is about to show what a monstrous act of tyranny the Kuklux bill is, it usually begins by assuring us that the South is really more tranquil and orderly than any other section of the country. To be sure, appearances are a little against this agreeable theory, and malevolent Republicans and evil-disposed negroes have a vexatious way of getting themselves shot and beaten every now and then, which is a trifle embarrassing. But when we learn that they do this out of pure malignity, in order to blast the character of Southern society, and bring upon it the minions of a military despotism, our doubts are relieved. If negro preachers will bellow, and Republicans will hold offices which rightfully belong to their Democratic neighbors, of course they must expect to be shot, or whipped to death. And the high-toned and chivalric gentlemen who do the shooting and whipping ought not to be blamed for what is at best a sad necessity forced on them by the designing persons aforesaid.

Accepting this view of the situation, and conceding that those midnight diversions of the Kuklux, which seem to our prejudiced eyes wanton and cowardly murders, are in reality only Republican devices to bring odium on a magnanimous people, it is, perhaps, true that there is no more crime and bloodshed on the average in the South than in the North. But when we come to examine the character of the criminal classes in the two sections, we find a very remarkable and ominous difference. With us there are people who murder, and people who are murdered, and they constitute in the main two distinct portions of the population. Besides, except in certain places like New-York, where Democratic rule has fostered a certain tropical liberality of sentiment in such matters, promiscuous homicide as here regarded with disfavor. Punishment, too, is for the most part to all alike. The learned philologist is hung as speedily as the ignorant tramp. Of course in the North, too, there are family feuds which sometimes lead to murder. Only last Wednesday, from such a cause, Mr. WILLIAM L. PARADISE, President of the First National Bank of Youngerstown, in Ohio, came to be shot and wounded by Mr. JAMES R. TYLER, his wife's cousin. But to show how differently we are impressed as regards the social condition of the two sections, we shall expect to hear that Mr. TYLER has been, at least, arrested. But when a Bank President in the South is even killed by his wife's cousin, we only expect to hear that the latter is in turn assassinated by some kinsman of his victim. And so the dead-roll grows.

Not long ago, for example, two young gentlemen of Mississippi, whose plantations adjoined, having differed about some trifling matter of boundary, conceived that the proper way to settle the difficulty was by resort to the pistol. So they adopted the ingenious expedient of advancing upon one another from a distance of forty paces, firing shot-guns à discretion as they came. Naturally, when they got near enough, it became difficult to miss, and one of the young gentlemen ceased to have any further use for either shot-guns or plantations. Now, two Northern youths would probably have hired a surveyor, or peaceably gone to law—in the long run, perhaps, the wiser course.

This story, which we find in the New-Iberia Banner, of Louisiana, is not less characteristic in what it tells than significant in the manner of its telling. Two other young gentlemen of that place, named DROSIN MIGUEZ and THEOGENE VIATOR, have the misfortune to be cousins. That mutual injury was too bitter to be tamely borne, and each seems to have made the other responsible for an indignity which after all seems to have been rather the fault of nature and their ancestors. Considering the tempers of the two young gentlemen, they seem to be justified in resenting a relationship which can be only less ignominious to Mr. MIGUEZ than to Mr. VIATOR. Since the cradle, almost, their animosity has revealed itself in reciprocal violence, and about a year ago they were bound over in the sum of two hundred dollars each to keep the peace for twelve months. With a discretion which does honor to their Louisian habits, they endured the outrage of sonnetship quietly during the prescribed term. On the 15th of May the year of inaction expired, and thereupon one of these nice young gentlemen sent to the other a request to meet him at an hour and place specified, armed with double-barreled shot-gun and revolver. The tryesting was faithfully kept, and from a distance of forty yards they emptied their weapons. "The young man who was invited to the feast of blood," says the Banner, with much address, "took the precaution to bring an extra repeater, which gave him a very decided advantage over his opponent." Their marksmanship, however, was unworthy of their ferocity, for after fourteen shots had been fired by one and eight by the other, they were forced to resort to the butt-ends of their pistols to inflict the only painful wounds given or received on either side. These unhappily were not fatal, and the Banner "regrets to learn that it is the general opinion of those best acquainted with the parties, that this will not be the end of the affair."

With pastimes like this in vogue, with almost nightly raids of Kuklux marauders in almost every State, with men and women here and there shot down in broad daylight, and above all with a public sentiment singularly callous to the sinfulness of bloodshed, is it not hard to believe that the South is altogether so tranquil and orderly as Democratic optimists would have us believe? And would it not be well for Southern men, who have at heart the welfare of their people and of the whole country, to consider if no means can be found to create a more wholesome feeling on so important a matter?

An Insurance Convention.

We are not surprised to find that at last an effort is being made to harmonize and reduce to some sensible system the disjointed scheme of State insurance supervision. As now undertaken, this important business is in the most absurd confusion. Every State has a different code of Insurance laws; their execution is in the hands of all sorts of officials, from Superintendents and Commissioners down to clerks in Auditors' offices, and between all these a sad mass is made of the matter. The two foremost States in systematic supervision, New-York and Massachusetts, whose lead all the others follow in a abject course, cannot agree upon a basis of valuations of life policies, nor upon a uniform style of company statements; and in many other respects these pioneers and models set examples of discordance which their followers throughout the country appear to be only too glad to emulate.

No two States in the Union, so far as we are aware, require from the companies the same form of financial statement. The only wonder is that the officials of the companies can keep their temper while compelled to reiterate, in all sorts of forms, answers to the one hundred or one hundred and fifty questions, which are put to them by thirty-six State officials, in as many different forms of blanks. That there is not the least necessity for all this confusion only aggravates the persons who suffer from its existence.

Then, again, the several States differ widely in their treatment of companies from other States doing business within their borders. While, in some, the business of insurance is as free as air to all who choose to enter upon it and can pass an examination, in others there are deposit requirements, taxes, license laws and local impositions, which unite to form a burden almost intolerable, and in any event most galling to the companies from other States. These are the more oppressive from the fact that several of the States most [illegible] in the matter of insurance taxation, which is now such a nuisance and injustice, committed as the exponent of the interest whose progress and prosperity is the foundation of mercantile credit, and the spur of all local improvement? With the view of bringing all these State officials face to face, for an interchange of opinions and the development of some plan of united action, the Superintendent of the New-York Insurance Department called a convention, and it is now being held in this City. We have no doubt that its deliberations will be attended with many practical advantages.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Communists are still at bay in the south-east section of Paris, lying between the Boulevard de Fautes and the Boulevard de Montreuil, and including the heights of Charonne, the suburb of Belleville, and the Cemetery of Pere la Chaise. Bercy, in the south-east angle of the enemies, is also held by them. From the northern positions, shells filled with petroleum are still sent on their mission of wanton destruction, and the centre of the city remains the scene of irrepressible conflagrations. The captured leaders are being granted a very short shrift, the foreigners being dispatched with the greatest promptitude. MCMAHON seems determined to push severity still further, for he has declared that all who now refuse to obey his summons to lay down their arms will be inexorably shot. When the horrors of these latter days of Parisian revolt come to be fully known, we shall have pictures that may fitly vie with the record of the days of terror of the first revolution.

Opposition to papal infallibility in Catholic and Ultramontane Bavaria stings the Court of Rome to the quick. The Pope is said to have lost his temper the other day with the Bavarian Ambassador, in consequence of the refusal of King LOUIS to recognize the full force of the major excommunication directed against Dr. DOELLINGER. To make matters worse, the popular feeling in favor of the Munich theologian appears to be steadily increasing. The signatories of the first address to the Bavarian Government on behalf of Dr. DOELLINGER were duly excommunicated by the Pope, but in spite of this thousands of laymen as well as individual clergymen, have followed suit. The dogma was proclaimed a few weeks ago at the Bavarian town of Bayreuth, as was also the excommunications of the Munich Professor and his adherents. On the following day an address approving of the position taken up by Dr. DOELLINGER, issued from the same town, accompanied by numerous signatures. At this rate a papal Bull will shortly be held in great derision by a considerable section of the Catholic countrymen of LUTHER.

The Louisville Daily Ledger (Democratic) admits that the "new departure" of the Democrats is practically an unconditional surrender to the Republicans. It says, "the New-York TIMES understands and correctly states what the acceptance of VALLANDIGHAM'S platform leads to. The Democratic Party have continually been receding before Radical aggression, and if they are to go on further, yielding all the distinctive features of the party, there will be no necessity of retaining its organization. If holding the offices and sharing the public plunder is the only principle involved in the politics of to-day, there is no necessity of keeping up two political organizations." The Southern journals generally seem to be disgusted with Northern Democrats on account of their "same policy." This is only another proof of what we have repeatedly stated—that the Democrats will not be able to construct a programme in 1872 equally satisfactory to North and South, and as they cannot win without securing both sections, they had better make up their minds to fall from the start.

Who will be the next Governor of New-Hampshire is still involved in considerable doubt. The Legislature meets on the 7th day of June; the Senate is a tie, owing to there being no election in one district, and Mr. THAYER, who was elected from the Twentieth District, having died since his election, both parties claim a majority in the House. It is undoubtedly a fact that a clear majority of the members of the House owe their election to Republican votes, and may consider themselves bound to act in accordance with the wishes of those who elected them. Another question which complicates the matter is, whether it is necessary for the Senate to organize before meeting the Assembly in joint convention for the purpose of electing a Governor. If it is decided that it is necessary, the election may be deferred for some time. As the Senate is equally divided politically, an organization cannot be effected without a compromise. The Republicans claim that, according to the Constitution, the two vacancies in the Senate should be filled by Republicans. This would give the party a majority of one. The Democrats are, by various quibbles, trying to escape the constitutional provision. This course has developed a feeling which may perhaps render a compromise impossible. The struggle will doubtless be a protracted one, and the question of who will be Governor will not be decided for some time.

The Message of Gov. PALMER, of Illinois, contains a suggestion with regard to official fees which is worthy of attention in other States. The system of compensating public officers by fees is capable of great abuse. Judges are paid fixed salaries; why should not Sheriffs and clerks be similarly remunerated? It is a well-established fact that frequently a fee of ten times the legal amount is exacted. Gov. PALMER proposes to abolish all official fees, substituting fixed salaries, and in order that these salaries shall not be a tax on the whole people, a system of stamps resembling that of the internal revenue is suggested. By this means, a fund would be created from which all salaries could be paid, and the costs of legal proceedings made less burdensome. Judges of the Supreme Court are local officers, their duties being confined to a district, but their salaries are paid from a common fund. All other officers could be paid in the same way. The fees of the Sheriff of the County of New-York are enormous, surpassing the fortunate holder of the office in a single term. This office would be well paid with a salary of $10,000, and the people relieved of a great burden.

Well-Known Passengers to Sail for Europe.

On Saturday, June 3, the steam-ship Italy, Capt. GROGAN, of the National line, will leave this port for Liverpool, having on board Judge DOWLING, HARRY PALMER, LYDIA THOMPSON, Mr. HENDERSON, MISS [illegible] and about twenty other actors and actresses. Among the passengers will be a representative of an Imperial family of Europe, beside others of note in the professional circles.

One or two steamers will start simultaneously the day to Sandy Hook provided with tugs, one of which Dodworth's Band will be stationed on the pilot's deck for two hours before the time of sailing. On the same day forty-eight Knights Templar from Pennsylvania will embark on a tour and proceed down the Bay to take passage on the steamer. Cannon, the Forty-second, will be a lively time on the docks of these steamers during the day, and also on the Bay.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

JULLIEN CONCERTS.

The promised Jullien concerts at the Terrace Park Garden were commenced last evening, under most auspicious circumstances. The weather was favorable, the audience large, the music good. Reasonable expectations were met, therefore, have been disappointed. The name of the projector of these entertainments is a guarantee of considerable merit—many, it is true, have raised hopes of the enlivening of a taste in imparalled that awakened in earlier years by the present M. JULLIEN'S father. Their yesterday's performances, while affording ample satisfaction, did not work up the audience quite to the old pitch of excitement, or may be, however, cause for wonderment. Practice and limited orchestral contrasts have in late years become more and more frequent, and the steady exposition each season of the most elaborate compositions has lessened in a great degree the charm of novelty or "taking" performances. With these facts in view, we think we can appreciate M. JULLIEN warmly when we declare him a musician of refinement and culture, whose command of his forces, already splendid, will be still increased by that acquaintance with their resources—and with the best men, in which they are employed—which time only can give him. His first night's programme was cleverly composed, and was interpreted with as few corrections to which no exception would be taken. It included MOZART'S symphony in "Jupiter," BENAZET'S "Organization" waltz, the overture to "Tannhauser," JULLIEN'S "Grand Military Fantasia," the scherzo from BEETHOVEN'S Eighth Symphony and the "Coronation March" from "Il Profeta." It also embraced vocal solos by Miss MINNIE KNOX, Mr. ARTHUR MATTHEWS and Signor PERETTI, and two instrumental contributions for soloists, by M. CASTERMEIR, the absurd whom really appreciable talent we called immediate attention to a fortnight ago, and by Mr. HARVEY, a capital performer on the trombone. We have indicated above the general impression of the whole concert as one of fair and equal depth. The effect of the "Grand Military Fantasia," with its happy combinations of sounds from visible and invisible contestants, and the less prominent but very felicitous bits of waltzing standing out from the mass of convolutions, was especially inspiriting. The original conductor of the affair, as well as its superintendent, was, of course, M. LOUIS GEORGE JULLIEN. He was supplied with an efficient aid as would be desired by HERR ADOLPH NEUENDORFF.

BROOKLYN CHORAL UNION.

The two performances by the Brooklyn Choral Union at the Skating Rink, in that city on Thursday, drew together large audiences, especially in the evening, when the spacious building was crowded to its utmost capacity. Miss KELLOGG, of course received, as she is always sure to receive in Brooklyn, a cordial welcome on both occasions, and her execution of her portions of the programme was loudly applauded, and in every case a repetition was unanimously demanded. The other soloists acquitted themselves in an acceptable manner, and the chorus numbering 300 performers, and the same number of instruments, under the direction of Mr. THEODORE THOMAS, gave a very fine rendering of the selections. The Jersey City Philharmonic Society, Mr. W. F. SHERWIN, conductor, added not a little to the pleasure of the occasion. Of course the Anvil Chorus, with its superabundance of noise, was the most popular feature of the affair. Mr. GILMORE was cheered loudly on his appearance, and his company of red-shirted, black-trowsered blackamoors executed their enthusiasm as they marched in to the beat of the drum. The chorus with its artillery and anvil accompaniment, delighted the audience, who loudly insisted upon an encore, regardless of those little considerations in the execution which might irritate sensitive and cultivated ears. The overture, "Choral Festival," composed by Mr. HARVEY B. DODWORTH, and dedicated by him to the Society, was excellently well rendered under his leadership at the opening of the evening performances. In a pecuniary sense the concerts were probably quite successful, although the expenses were necessarily large.

OBITUARY.

Gen. Louis Burgess.

Gen. LOUIS BURGESS died on Thursday afternoon, suddenly, at his residence, No. 169 Pineapple-street, Brooklyn, of disease of the heart, with which he has been afflicted for nearly a year, and which appears to be a hereditary affliction in his family. Gen. BURGESS visited Florida last Winter in hopes of finding relief, as his complaint was then considered to be an affection of the lungs, the trouble not being known until a few months since. His death was very sudden, and occurred while he was engaged in a conversation with Gen. F. S. DARIN.

Gen. BURGESS was born in 1820, in Kaiserslautern, in the Palatinate, and came to New-York in 1847, where he established himself as an architect. In 1854 he organized the engineer corps of the Fifth Regiment National Guard, and was elected Captain. In 1859 he was promoted to the Majority of the regiment, and in 1861 elected Lieutenant-Colonel. He was with the Fifth Regiment in that year during the first three months' campaign. In September of the same year he received his commission as Colonel of the regiment. In 1862 he again marched to the field with his regiment when the invasion of Pennsylvania was threatened. In December, 1862, he was appointed and elected Brigadier-General, to command the Second Brigade of the New-York State National Guards. Gen. BURGESS was the builder of numerous large factories and buildings, and he was President of the Lederkranz Society for two terms. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn his irreparable bereavement. The funeral arrangements are, of course, not yet decided upon, but the entire Second Brigade will probably be ordered out to escort the remains of their chief to the grave.

Threatened Disruption of the American and Foreign Christian Union.

At the regular meeting of the American and Foreign Christian Union, held on Thursday a week ago, WM. A. BOOTH was chosen President at the annual election of officers. He, however, declined to serve for another year, as a difference of opinion was developed which was likely to interfere with the welfare of the Board, and to conflicts in which he would rather not take part. Then, too, Dr. BUTLER, who had faithfully served as Secretary for several years, was superseded by Rev. Mr. CRITTENDEN. These differences have been growing for a year or two back, and may be said to have originated with a few persons not altogether pleased with their status in the Board. Now there are two parties, the Presbyterians and Congregationalists on the one side, and the Methodists and Dutch Reformed on the other. The former met last Tuesday, (since Mr. BOOTH'S resignation,) and during their deliberations resolved to notify Dr. CRITTENDEN that they would not support him, and would recommend a dissolution of the Board. There was a meeting of the Board on Thursday, at which a committee was appointed to arrange for its dissolution. Now, therefore, each denomination will assume charge of the support of its own missionaries in foreign fields.

Fifteenth Assembly District Republican Association.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Fifteenth Assembly District Republican Association was held, last evening, at No. 246 West Thirty-third-street, Mr. HENRY D. LAFAYOR presiding. Major H. M. GAYLORD and Dr. ALEXANDER WILDER made exciting addresses, endorsing Gen. GRANT, favoring reorganization in the Republican Party, and denouncing the Tammany Republicans.

Dr. WILLIAM J. STEWART proposed the following resolution, which was unanimously agreed to:

Resolved, That we rejoice in the ratification by the United States Senate of the Treaty of Washington, and that we regard this treaty as one of the most important achievements of the Administration, and for which President GRANT is entitled to the highest reward and gratitude of the nation.

After some remarks by other members the Association adjourned.

WASHINGTON.

Mr. Carpenter Makes a Ridiculous Speech—The Treaty Mr Monks for England—Testimony in the Havemeyer Case—The Next Presidential Candidate—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Mr. CARPENTER made a speech today on the subject of the investigation which set the galleries roaring with laughter, and set up some of those who have been malignantly assailing himself and Mr. CONKLING in a conspicuously absurd position, and some of those who have been assailing not him, but the investigation, had to laugh at the ridiculous figures they themselves were made to cut. The result of the tumultuous and tempestuous talk of yesterday, as which, however, a good deal of truth stuck out, has been to convince almost everybody save who has heretofore thought otherwise, that there two Senators have done no more than many others who share with them the responsibility in shaping the course of the investigation. Mr. CONKLING'S reply to the statement of Mr. WILSON yesterday in spoken of today as one of the finest inconspicuous efforts ever heard in the Senate Chamber, and Mr. CARPENTER'S speech today, in a different vein was, perhaps, equally effective. The effect on them personally who propose to send these two Senators into obscurity was certainly not cheerful.

THE TREATY.

The Treaty of Washington was sent from here to New-York today, and will go from there by the Cunard line to-morrow, for the purpose of exchange of ratifications. Minister SCHENCK will receive it three or four days after his arrival in England and the exchange of ratifications will be completed in three or four weeks. An explanation of the process of exchanging ratifications may be interesting, as it seems to be little understood. Two copies of the treaty were signed by the Commissioners, one of which was sent at once to London, and one placed before the Senate by the President. The Senate, having consented to the treaty, the President and Secretary of State attach their signatures to the copy, and when Minister SCHENCK receives it he will exchange this copy, having the signature of the President, for the other copy, which will be signed by the Queen. When the exchanged copy has been received it will be promulgated by the President in a proclamation, and its provisions will then be fully in force.

THE INVESTIGATION.

The evidence thus far taken in the investigation went to the public printer today. An examination of it shows that the Committee has made greater progress toward unraveling the mystery of the publication of the treaty than was supposed. The testimony of Dr. TAFT, the Senate Postmaster, indicates that while he was before the Committee he must have suffered intense agony lest he should say something which he did not mean to. If the whole transaction is ever known, the complete evidence will be spicy reading. As the appearance now is, the evidence warrants the belief that the publication was made through the Senate, and seems to furnish a reason for the seal by some most earnest at first in the investigation to break it down before it proceeds further.

GENERAL GRANT'S RENOMINATION.

Gen. FARNSWORTH denies the statement recently widely circulated, that he had traveled much in the West lately, and found the feeling among Republicans against the renomination of President GRANT.

THE MEXICAN CLAIMS.

The Senate has before it a treaty with Mexico extending one year the Mexican Claims Commission. There has been a difference of opinion among Senators about action at this session, some preferring to wait till December, as the Commission does not expire till January. But, on the other hand, it is desirable for the Commissioners to know soon whether they will have another year or not, in order to arrange the work before them. Accordingly, it is understood that the question goes before the Executive Session this afternoon. It was supposed that no objection existed to the treaty, but three or four hours were spent in second session. It is whispered, however, and in a kind of mysterious manner, that a subject of still greater importance, of which nobody outside the Senate has any intimation, was under consideration.

CONDITION OF THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The anxiety of those who see the Vice-President from day to day, seems to increase, rather than diminish. He sat up a short time today to have his bed arranged, but improvement is scarcely perceptible. He is unable to move, except slightly, without assistance, and it will probably be a long time, even if no change for the worse takes place, before he can be moved from his room in the Capitol.

THE SESSION OF THE SENATE.

The Senate had only a few more than a quorum present today, and there is some doubt tonight whether there will be a quorum present in the city to-morrow. In that event no business can be done except to adjourn from day to day till Senators enough to make up the quorum can be brought back. Final adjournment can not be effected by a less number than a quorum. It is now likely that a quorum will be present, and that the refractory witnesses will be turned over to the Courts according to law. They can only escape a month at least in the common jail by the refusal of the jury, in spite of law and evidence that is absolute, to bring in a verdict of guilty of refusing to testify.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

SECRETARY BELKNAP AS A LITERARY ORATOR.

Secretary BELKNAP will deliver an address before the Alumni of Princeton College at their next anniversary celebration.

SENDING THE INDIANS.

It is understood that a member of the Board of Indian Peace Commissioners will be sent to feed the starving Apaches in Arizona, as soon as they can be brought in upon a reservation.

THE BOWEN BIGAMY CASE.

In the Criminal Court, today, the case of Ex-Representative BOWEN, of South Carolina, charged with bigamy, was called up, but, in consequence of the absence of one of the counsel and the illness of another, the case was postponed till Tuesday next.

AFFAIRS IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

Gov. SCOTT, of South Carolina, who arrived here yesterday, had a long interview with President GRANT this morning in which he said there was no necessity for putting the State under martial law, and that there was a good state of feeling among the better classes of citizens to put down Ku-klux organizations. The Governor left for New-York to-night on business connected with South Carolina.

TREASURY MATTERS.

The Treasury balances today are as follows:

Currency	$4,794,000
Coin	83,142,000
Coin certificates	17,905,000

The subscription to the new loan today was $400,000.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

Extra Session.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Friday, May 26.

Mr. HOWE, from the Committee on Printing, offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing that Committee to inquire into the cost of a pneumatic tube between the Capitol and the Public Printing-office for the transmission of packages, and also as to a telegraph line, to report at the next session.

THE REFRACTORY REPORTERS.

The Chair stated the unfinished business to be the resolution of Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, to discharge Messrs. WHITE and RAMSDELL immediately on the adjournment of the present session, with the pending amendment of Mr. DAVIS, of Kentucky.

Mr. CARPENTER, of Wisconsin, said he had nothing to do with starting the investigation, and decried the often-repeated newspaper statement that he had been made the cat's-paw of Mr. CONKLING. He had received anonymous letters, threatening that the entire machinery of the American Press would be directed against him personally, if he should proceed with the investigation. He, too, had incurred such displeasure for moving a resolution to commit the witnesses. He had never seen any other course taken in cases where witnesses refused to answer. If all the correspondents being in prison, they were furnished with two of the best rooms in the Capitol, where they had a comfortable bed. Instead of this, they should have been committed to jail, as any Justice of the Peace would have committed them, for the witnesses were undoubtedly in contempt. If this had been the case the Senate would have had the required answers before now. He believed now, as he had expressed before, that the treaty was not made public through the State Department, the Public Printer or the Commissioners, but that it was made public through the Senate by some gross negligence or carelessness. He commented severely on the correspondents of the New-York Tribune, and, among other things, said that a malicious libel was penetrated on him in a recent communication purporting to give an account of the examination of Mr. THURMAN, which account Mr. THURMAN had in a note to him denounced as untrue. He also spoke of the morality and the press, and wanted to know if the correspondents of Newspaper-row would sanction what the Tribune correspondents had done, and at the close of their stately gave them a complimentary dinner. The New-York Tribune was an alias for HORACE GREELEY, who had befriended here by means of telegrams from HORACE GREELEY in Texas delivering agricultural addresses, and has left the Tribune in the control of a toy and pretender—WHITELAW REID. Mr. CARPENTER commenced at some length in opposition to the pending resolution to discharge the Tribune correspondents at the end of the session.

Mr. FENTON, of New-York, sent up a paper, which, by request, he caused to have read, signed by Messrs. HISTON, BOSTON, SHAW and KNOWLTON, newspaper correspondents, saying that Mr. THURMAN made his statements publishing in the New-York Tribune characters, but the said statements were not as bitter toward the Committee as those Mr. THURMAN made in their presence.

After further debate by Senators THURMAN, of Ohio, and DAVIS, of Kentucky, the latter withdrew his amendment, which was to the effect that the discharge of the witnesses should not affect such proceedings instituted under the act of January, 1857.

Mr. NYE, of Nevada, renewed it, and in the course of his remarks said that, if in the examination of CONKLING, evidence had been refused to readily, instead of being furnished with comfortable quarters in the Capitol, he would have been sent to that most loathsome place, called the jail, until he answered questions proposed to him. Correspondents of the Tribune are in contempt, and are amenable to the law of the land. After some preceding further, Mr. HAMLIN moved that the Senate go into Executive Session, which was agreed to—yeas 35, nays 18.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

It is understood the subject discussed by the Senate in Executive Session, today, was in some way connected with the Treaty of Washington, but the precise form of the proposition was not ascertained. It is certain, however, that it chilled a long and earnest debate, which had been commenced on the time of adjournment. The Senate have ratified the additional treaty between the United States and Great Britain, defining more clearly some of the provisions of the Naturalization Treaty.

The Senate adjourned at 6 P. M.

THE MURDERER'S DOOM.

Execution of Charles Hacker at Fonda, N. Y.—Circumstances of His Crime—His Behavior in Prison—Scenes and Incidents at the Gallows—A Horrible Spectacle.

From Our Special Correspondent.

FONDA, Montgomery County, N. Y., Friday, May 26, 1871.

CHARLES HACKER, the murderer of THOS. E. BURDICK, was executed at this place today. The crime was committed on the 6th of July, 1870, and caused an intense excitement. BURDICK was a man of high standing in the community, and HACKER had cherished a terrible enmity against him for many years. In fact, a feud had existed between the families for nearly half a century, growing out of a sentence against the father of HACKER by the father of BURDICK, while acting as a Judge. On the day of the murder, a celebration of the anniversary of the National Independence had taken place in St. Johnsville, on which occasion BURDICK and HACKER, were both present. At a ball in the evening, while the former stood at the bar, asking for a glass of water, HACKER entered and deliberately shot him. The murderer was at once arrested. The village was intensely excited, and it was with difficulty that the people were prevented from lynching him. HACKER'S trial commenced April 3, at this place. He was sentenced on the 6th. The evidence was very clear, six persons having witnessed the deed. While the jury were out deliberating, HACKER made a desperate attempt at suicide. A subsequent attempt was made with opium, smuggled to him in some unknown manner. He became torpid, and the jail physician with great difficulty resuscitated him. After that time he was carefully watched.

During his imprisonment he manifested the utmost indifference, alleging that he had rather die than be imprisoned for life, and would as leave be hung as not. He smoked to excess and ate heartily. He has remained obdurate during all the faithful ministrations of the Prison Chaplain, Rev. WASHINGTON PROTHINGHAM, until yesterday, when he became readily affected by the appeals of the Chaplain.

At an early hour the roads leading to the village were crowded with long lines of carriages, bringing thousands of people from all parts of the country. Company A, Eighty-third Regiment, S. N. G., under command of Capt. JOHN WARNER, arrived from Amsterdam on an early train, and surrounded the place of execution. A large force of special Deputy Sheriffs were also placed on guard. About half an acre of the lawn outside the jail had been inclosed with a strong stockade of planks fifteen feet in height. Near the centre the gallows was placed. It was newly-built of heavy timber uprights, cross-beams and braces, and painted a hideous black.

At 9 o'clock Mrs. HACKER and her two children—a lad of twelve, and a miss of eleven—entered the condemned cell, where the farewell scene was most affecting. Many of the friends then came and bade him adieu, but he scarcely paused from smoking his pipe to notice them. The scenes in the principal avenues of the village adjacent to the jail beggar all description. From five to ten thousand were crowded in the avenues surrounding the Court-house square. An enterprising and unscrupulous couple had erected a stand in the public highway against the stockade and charged 25 each for seats. As soon as this was discovered by Deputy SAMMONS, he made a sortie and dispersed the occupants. The military then took and held possession of it. All the neighboring roofs were black with accumulated humanity. One of these being in a dilapidated state, suddenly gave way, and precipitated a huge mass of flesh and broadcloth to the earth. Roars and shouts of laughter greeted this ridiculous catastrophe, which, happily, was unattended with any serious results. A chimney also gave way, and landed a cluster of humans into a pile of soot and brick-dust. A number of roughs climbed up the stockade like cats, and were dispersed by pailfuls of water skillfully scattered. The hotels were overwhelmed, and their entire supply of everything, except liquors, gave out in the afternoon. Women and children were promiscuously scattered among the crowd, and in some cases were squeezed and pushed severely. The military force was inadequate for the occasion, as was shown after the execution, when the mob attacked and broke down portions of the stockade.

At 12½ P. M. the religious services held by Rev. Messrs. PROTHINGHAM and STARK, alone with the condemned and his watchers, were concluded, and he was led out of his cell into the bread corridor. The procession was then marched to the scene of the execution. HACKER was placed in a chair directly under the gallows. There was not the slightest trace of nervousness or trepidation in his manner, but a ghastly pallor spread over his countenance as he gazed about. The Sheriff in a loud clear voice read the death warrant, and then asked HACKER if he had anything to say. He replied: "I suppose the law must take its course; I am willing; but I am innocent."

Deputies CHOUK, LAMMONS and RHEU were about to place the black cap on his face, after the noose had been adjusted, when he said, "Don't put that on me; let my spirit go up like a butterfly looking upward." But he made no resistance, and clasped his hands in the right hand of each assistant. The execution was not concealed from public view. Deputy RHEU drew a sharp jackknife from his pocket and laid the blade against the weight rope in full view of the assembly. At a given signal from the Sheriff, he drew the blade across the rope. The weight descended with a dull "thud," and HACKER'S body was sprung to a height of six feet and dangled in the air. Three awful convulsions of the figure and twitchings of the clutched hands followed, and the stark stiff body hung suspended between heaven and earth.

"JOHN BURDICK is avenged!" ejaculated a dear friend of the murdered man. Ten minutes passed. The pulse beat. Fourteen minutes—and the death of HACKER was pronounced by the medical attendants. Twenty minutes afterward the corpse was lowered in a casket. The features were not distorted, but were those of a stubborn, weary nature at rest. District-Attorney BAKER made an address to the assembled multitude, congratulating them that the murderer of BURDICK was dead, and orphans and widows liberally provided for. The motley crowd then dispersed with many ejaculations.

Other Games.

The contest between the Resolute and Eckford Clubs of Elizabeth, on Wednesday, resulted in the defeat of the Resolutes by a score of 25 to 8.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 26.—A game of base-ball between the Forest City Club, of Cleveland, and the Kekionges, of Fort Wayne, resulted in favor of the latter by a score of 16 to 7.

Accidental Shooting.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. JAMES B. THURSTON, of No. 445 East Eleventh-street, a clerk in the Seventh Ward National Bank, entered the pawn-shop of JOSEPH B. LEWIS, No. 89 Bleecker-street, to purchase a revolver. JOHN MEHAN, a boy thirteen years of age employed in the shop as clerk, waited upon Mr. THURSTON, and produced several pistols of different patterns for his examination, and was showing the customer one of these of the kind known as the National revolver, when the weapon was accidentally discharged, the ball entering the left side of THURSTON, and causing a serious but not dangerous wound. Officer EDWARD DARE, detailed at the Grand Central Hotel, happening to be present, rushed in and arresting MILLER, hurried him off to Police Head-quarters, where he was locked up. DARE also took the wounded man to the Grand Central Hotel, where he did not belong, but he had assigned a room. Coroners KENNAN and YOUNG being notified hurried to the scene, only to find no occasion for their official action except to discharge MILLER from custody.

New-York Capital at the South.

From the New-York Tribune, May 26.

Among the new enterprises undertaken at the South by Northern capitalists is the railway line from Mobile, through New-Orleans, to Houston, Texas, a distance of 475 miles, under the name of the New-Orleans, Mobile and Texas Railroad. The company having the work in hand comprises such prominent business men and bankers as Hon. R. D. Morgan, Hon. John A. Griswold, Hon. Oakes Ames, Messrs. Morton, Bliss & Co., J. S. W. Seligman & Co., L. von Hoffman & Co., James H. Parker, Harrison Dyckman, James C. Raynor, William S. Williams and others. These supplement have already built, with their own funds, nearly two-thirds of the entire line, having paid in and expended upon the work nearly $10,000,000 before asking the public to buy a bond or a share of stock. Such a large expenditure of their own means without dependence upon the sale of bonds is rare among companies who undertake the construction of our railroad routes. The Mobile Division of the road constitutes the only rail connection between the two leading commercial cities of the Gulf, and the line from Texas to Houston is practically also the only railroad communication between that city and the great State of Texas, with all its enormous productions of grain, cotton, cane and cattle. The value of this part of the line can be easily understood to be very great. Having proved their own faith in the ultimate success of the enterprise by the large expenditure noted, the Company have now issued eight per cent forty-year bonds upon the Louisiana Division, which are the first securities of any kind which they have put upon the market. The Louisiana Division, from New-Orleans to the Sabine River, is 224 miles long. The First Mortgage Bonds are to the amount of $12,500 per mile, and Second Mortgage Bonds to an equal amount are guaranteed, principal and interest, by the State of Louisiana. The capital already invested gives a strong financial basis to the issue.

To the Public.

STUYVESANT SAFE DEPOSIT COMPANY,
CORNER SEVENTH-STREET AND THIRD-AVENUE,
OPPOSITE COOPER INSTITUTE.
NEW-YORK, May 27, 1871.

We respectfully submit that the keeping of valuables in private residences and other irresponsible places, has become, from the frequent robberies of such places, dangerous and impracticable. For this reason it has become necessary to make the safe-keeping of bonds, silver-plate, jewels and other valuables a separate and distinct incorporated business—with secure vaults, and officers and watchmen—whose sole business it is to provide means of baffling the burglar. The burglar has hitherto been successful, because he made burglary a science, while other men were too busy about their own affairs to make a science of safe-keeping; and is it not true that men always succeed better in what they are busy and earnest about?

This want of a place of real safety, becoming more and more felt in the community, led to the establishment of safe deposit companies. Should not every citizen, therefore, visit these institutions and become familiar with their modes of transacting business, whether he desires to make use of them or not?

While there are few, if any, places in the world more impervious to the burglar and dangerous for him to attack than the vaults of Safe Deposit Companies, a thousand insecure places exist which he does attack, and where the burglar's skill constantly brings him a rich harvest. For instance: Old-fashioned bank-vaults built twenty years ago, with locks as antiquated as the vaults themselves, bankers' and brokers' offices, unwatched during the night, jewelry establishments and stores filled with costly goods, watched, perhaps, by one man alone, who may be away or asleep just at the wrong moment, and residences containing private safes. These last are tempting baits to a skilful burglar. Citizens ought to know by this time that safes in private residences are nothing more than lackeonses to attract burglars. It should not be forgotten that a wealthy citizen of this City, only last Summer, was awakened at midnight by desperate burglars engaged in breaking open his private safe, and he lost his life, it is thought, by trying to defend his safe. The lesson here taught is that valuables should never be kept in private residences at any time, but least of all during the Summer months when the burglars are all at work.

We invite all careful persons before leaving the City for the Summer to visit the vaults of the Stuyvesant Safe Deposit Company, at the corner of Seventh-street and Third-avenue, opposite Cooper Institute, and satisfy themselves of the truthfulness of our statements.

Respectfully,
EBENEZER BEADLESTON, President.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.

SATURDAY MORNING.

Our SUNDAY EDITION of the next inst. will present various features of special interest.

A highly-suggestive and striking description of SCENES IN THE INTERIOR OF JAPAN will be given from the pen of a special correspondent. His official and religious movements, little known to civilization will be adverted to, and the undeveloped resources of our neighbor across the Pacific will be considered.

The practice of hoarding so extensively carried on in Europe and the East will receive new illustration in a little sketch entitled UNDERCOUTTS WEALTH.

The AFFAIRS OF THE SALVATION ARMY will form a feature of interest. The article will contain much matter for reflection and much valuable information.

In the department of CURRENT LITERATURE will be found the usual good story, and carefully-selected array of extracts from the several books now magnified.

NOTES AND COMMENTS will be distinguished by their accustomed variety.

The weekly summary of DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE will be unusually complete and interesting.

MILITARY GOSSIP will present the customary variety of facts calculated to interest the members of our various National Guard regiments.

Various other specially-prepared articles will be forthcoming, to enhance the interest and value of the Sunday edition.

The LATEST INTELLIGENCE received by mail and telegraph, from all parts of the world, up to the hour of going to press, will be found in this edition. Correspondence from the great news centres of the Union and of Europe will also be provided. The local reports are invariably of equal fullness and accuracy, and no feature is wanting to perfect that claim of this edition to be considered a complete family newspaper of the highest class.

From the very large and exceptionally valuable nature of the circulation of our Sunday edition, advertisers would find it of advantage to make liberal use of the facilities it affords for reaching the very best classes in this and neighboring cities. The public approval has been extensively indorsed by the opinion of many influential newspapers. From the latter may be quoted the verdict of the Boston Transcript, an authority of unquestioned respectability: "The Sunday edition of the New-York Daily Times is one of the best newspapers in the country."

To insure proper classification, advertisers are requested to send in their orders not later than 9 o'clock on Saturday evening.

A. HAMILTON, Cashier. President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

YOU HAVEN'T TRIED THEM.

Victim of debility, who is responsible for your feebleness? Not yourself, you will say, for you've done all you could to cure it. There's a mistake on your part.

You haven't tried HOSTETTER'S Bitters.

Gloomy dyspeptic, with an uneasy stomach and a weary face, of course you don't think yourself responsible for your own ailments. But you are. It is easy to ask some other question than you haven't tried Hostetter's Bitters.

Nervous invalid, if in the year past, you think, that you have grown weaker day by day, what will you do? Do you say you will die? Very likely, but you can be relieved if you will try HOSTETTER'S Bitters.

Why haven't you used Hostetter's Bitters?

Nervous sufferer, what have you to say? You plead that you have taken all the nervines of the pharmacopœia. If they have done you no good, it is not your fault. You are not responsible. Wrong; all wrong. You have in reality, nobody to blame but yourself. Why haven't you tried Hostetter's Bitters?

For all the above-named complaints the Bitters are an absolute specific.

TAXATION.

Address by Hon. D. A. Wells Before the West-side Association—Errors in the System of Assessment in This State.

At the sixth public meeting of the West-side Association, at the Apollo Rooms, last evening, Judge H. C. VAN VOORST made an able address in regard to taxation and the principles of its assessment, especially pointing out the defects of the system that prevails in this State.

There is no subject, he said, to the consideration of which the West-side Association can more properly direct its attention than that of taxation and the principles of its assessment. In a free country, where, in theory, the people themselves create the burdens which become the subjects of taxation, and also determine the manner of its assessment, there should of necessity be less complaint in regard either to the amount of the taxes or the character and description of the property on which they should rest. It is otherwise in a despotic Government where there is no representation, where the subjects have no voice in legislation, and are called, ordinarily or unwillingly, to apply their property to discharge impositions laid upon them by the will of a despotic Prince. Proper and legitimate taxation should be and is cheerfully borne by the people of this State because it is the expression of their own wishes and affords the means of protective rights of property, character and liberty. This country can be engaged in no extensive war, nor can large and unnecessary expenditures which increase the burdens of taxation be incurred, without the consequence of the Representatives of the people. Taxation in New-York has grown from $20,500,000, in 1861, to over $60,000,000 in 1870, a most extraordinary increase within such a space of time, and to which the increase of assessed values of property in the State bears no resemblance whatever. In New-York we have no poll-tax, and all assessments for the maintenance of the State, as well Municipal as County Government, is made upon property. And this is as it should be; for property should pay all Government expenses incident to its protection, as well as for the conservation of the rights of liberty and other rights of the owner. Inequality in taxation is a ground of complaint just as that of excessive burdens, although perhaps, not to the same degree. There is no room for doubt that the system of assessment of taxes in the State of New-York is very imperfect, and justly worthy of criticism and complaint. A careful examination of this subject will show that the great burden of taxation in the State of New-York falls upon the real estate, while personal property comparatively escapes. It is admitted that a system of laws, or their administration, which produces such results is unjust and needs reformation. Personal property needs as much protection under the Government as land, and receives such protection, and should bear an equal share of the expenses of maintaining the Government which guards it. This inequality, in a great degree, arises from the fact that the value of personal property is invisible, consisting of bonds, stocks and choses in action, which can be readily concealed from observation, while fixed property is open to examination to be reached by the assessors. And besides, while a citizen may deduct from his personal estate, in determining the amount of his liabilities, whatever the amount of all charges against him therein, and also his exemption, the real estate is assessed in the gross, without any deduction whatever for the purpose of property liable to taxation. There is much positive fraud and concealment practiced to exonerate it from its fair proportion of Governmental burdens. It is surprising to see how personal property, of the people, is found to be in the most extraordinary circumstances, although not in the ownership of any real estate, are suddenly found to be almost proprietorless, or greatly in debt, about the time the assessments are annually made. Surely no valid reason can be assigned why more effective checks should not be taken to reach and subject to taxation the vast amount of personal estate owned by the people of New-York, and situated within its limits, which in the aggregate is fully equal in value to all the real property within the bounds of the State. The principle should be settled and clearly understood, that all personal estate situated in New-York not exempted by law from taxation, nay specially excepted by our own statutes at present, should be assessed and taxed, and all needed legislation to this end should be claimed, and the laws so made should be honestly administered to reach this just consideration. All persons, as a matter of right and duty, and carrying the protection of our laws, should bear in fair share of the burdens of taxation. And from this enumeration of personal property liable to taxation, I would also except, as a matter of direct justice and propriety, mortgages on real estate, with the bonds accompanying the same. To exempt bonds and mortgages from taxation falls upon the personal estate, and I only consider that the whole amount of property returned for taxation in the State of New-York for the years 1866-1870 was $1,800,120,776, of which $464,370,676, or less than one quarter, was returned as personal estate. A member of the Constitutional Convention, from the City of New-York, stated in debate on the subject of the assessment of taxes, that he could name thirty-five gentlemen in the State whose aggregate wealth exceeded $450,000,000, or some $15,000,000 in excess of the entire assessed value of all personal estate in New-York. There is little room for doubt that invested in stocks and bonds, being the value of the entire property, real and personal, of the State of New-York, it is fully equal to $6,000,000,000. And if all this property was fairly reached and subjected to taxation, with the exceptions above alluded to, the evils and consequent burdens of excessive and unequal taxation would disappear, and even with an expenditure of $80,000,000 per annum the rate of taxation would fall to one per cent. and under. And if the laws, even as they now exist, were faithfully administered, the rate of taxation would scarcely exceed that amount. Another evil incident to our present system of assessment proceeds from the want of uniformity, or uniformity even, in our erroneous system of the valuations of real estate for the purposes of taxation. The law upon this subject is very explicit, in fact so much so that he who runs may read.

"All land within this State, whether owned by individuals or corporations, shall be liable to taxation. All the real property in the State shall be listed and assessed by the assessors at its true and full value, and as they would appraise the same in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor."

The law then prescribes that the Assessors, after the completion of their assessment-roll, shall make and subscribe an oath to the effect that they have set down all the real estate subject to their jurisdiction, and have estimated the same at the sums which a majority of the Assessors have decided to be the full and true value thereof, and at which they would appraise the same in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor, and "every Assessor who shall wilfully swear false in taking and subscribing said oath shall be deemed guilty of and liable to the penalties of wilful and corrupt perjury." It would be difficult to find a law where any duty of the officers to administer it is more clearly defined. Yet we all know that the law is so treated as to have become substantially a dead letter. Now, under this law, what assessment-roll which has been made out in this State, in any part of it, for the past 20 years, is true? While in its defective and unfortunate operation has been committed, great injustice and inequality have arisen. In the erroneous system of valuation adopted instead of that pointed out by the statute, no uniform or just method has been instituted in its stead. It is entirely arbitrary and differs in different districts of the State, according to the opinion of the assessors. While the personal estate in New-York is not assessed to one-fifth of its value, the real estate is not assessed at one-half. In the administration of their office in the various parts of the State, there seems to be a struggle between Assessors as to which can attain the lowest valuation, in order that the people of their respective districts may pay the lowest rate of taxation, and ministerial officers are commended to the suffrage of their constituents for indelicity rather than fidelity in office. Mr. VAN VOORST quoted largely from the reports of the Commissioners, of which Hon. DAVID A. WELLS is Chairman, made to the Legislature of the State at its last session. It is a matter of the first concern to us in New-York, and to the members of this Association, that this whole subject be placed on such a basis of taxation whereby it may be, the full actual value or fifty per cent. thereof, as will secure certainty, uniformity and honesty in the administration of the law. The whole system as at present administered, is demoralizing in the extreme. The subject calls for legislative action; but this Association could perform no higher service to the public than through its action to have this matter placed on some uniform basis. In the States of New-Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania, mortgages on real property are exempted from taxation over a very considerable portion of their respective territories. The result has proved beneficial to the State in question, and greatly to the advantage of the districts in which the exemption prevails. The rate of interest allowed by law with us is fixed at seven per centum per annum. Taxation on mortgages, and on the income derived therefrom, both Federal and State, in effect tends to reduce the rate of interest to the holder to less than five per centum per annum. The consequence follows that few persons care to loan money on such security. The proper method of relief is to entirely exempt mortgages on real estate from taxation. The members of this Association should bear in mind that each one has a duty to perform in regard to the subject discussed here to-night. Each one has an influence to be rightly and efficiently exercised toward obtaining the required legislative action in the premises.

Hon. FERNANDO WOOD also made an address during the evening on "Municipal Government and Public Improvements," with especial reference and appreciation to the West side.

Both addresses were well received.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The Sales at Auction Exchange, yesterday, (May 26,) were of minor importance, and all of a legal character. They were as follows:

* JAMES M. MILLER, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of JAMES MUNROE, Esq., referee, disposed of four lots on the south-east corner of Tenth-avenue and Ninety-first street, all purchased by Mr. THOMAS MORRILL. The corner lot, in size 25.8 by 100, brought $6,325; and the other three, adjoining, 25 by 100, each respectively, $4,975, $4,975 and $4,150.

JAMES A. FLEURY died, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of HARVEY SHELDON, Esq., referee, sold a three-story brown-stone front house and lot on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-seventh-street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, lot 16.6x99.11, for $13,600—purchaser, Mr. CHASE. The mortgage foreclosed amounted, with interest and costs, to about $7,000, and the property sold for $6,600 over and above that sum. Mr. CHASE was the defendant in the foreclosure suit, having sold the mortgage and guaranteed its payment.

HECKERS & McGUIRE, by order of M. T. HAMMAN, disposed of the right, title and interest of CATHERINE HOLDEN, in and to two lots and lots on the north-west corner of Fifth-avenue and Seventy-fifth-street, lots 40 together, 43 by 70; interest paid to, amount to about $7,000; sold for $1,501; to JOHN MEIDIG. To further illustrate the mode of assessment and appointment, by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., until June 2, of a legal sale of property on Cannon-street, near Rivington.

The suburban auctions held on Thursday, resulted as follows: At Mamaroneck, Westchester County, S. DUCHE & Co. offered for sale 200 acres of land, together with a number of country residences, embracing the property known as the Central Subdivision of the Grand Park Enterprise. The day was a pleasant one, and the attendance on the ground large, numbering some 400 persons, but for some unaccountable reason bidding was inactive and but comparatively a small portion of the property—about seventy acres—was sold. The details, with names of purchasers, are given below. The total receipts of the sale reached $63,604 60, but in this sum are included the prices received for three of the most desirable lots disposed of, the scheme, namely, the Hawley mansion, with some ten acres of land, sold for $22,000; the Clapp house, with twelve acres, sold for $13,000, and the McIntyre homestead, with nearly six acres, sold for $6,300. Owing to the poor success achieved, the sale was adjourned at 4 o'clock. It is said that the remainder of the property would be offered at public auction about the next two weeks, at the New-York Real Estate Exchange, No. 111 Broadway.

The sale of lots at Edgewater, Staten Island, conducted by the executors of ARTHUR, from the extensive bills published it will be seen was attended with better success than the Westchester auction, all the lots offered—140 in number—being disposed of. The prices of the lots sold—in size each 25 by 100—ranged from $100 to $226 per lot, according to location or fancy, while the average price per lot is about $165. The total of the sale is astonishing over $20,000, a satisfactory result although falling a little below the figure anticipated by the projectors of the auction. As to the character of the transaction, we are assured by the auctioneers that all the sales were bona fide. The attendance at the auction was large, with many strangers present, and for $1,300, and two plots adjoining, generally, sold for $1,300, and two plots adjoining, generally, sold for about five cents per square foot, or $2,000 per acre. The name of the purchaser given in was DUGAN, but it was rumored that Mr. OLIVER CHAMLICK bought the property. All the rest of the estate offered was bought in by interested parties, the bids made being below the estimated value. This value was $600 per lot for the more favorable ones. Another attempt to sell the estate will be made June 7, to which date the sale of Thursday was adjourned. In reference to the sale of the Steele well residence at Flushing, yesterday, proposed by Mr. LAWRENCE, no report has been received.

For today, at the Exchange, no sales are announced; and in country real estate the only auction is to take place in one of the Flushing, Long Island, sales conducted by E. A. LAWRENCE, at which the property known as the Higgins Nurseries, embracing 1,600 building lots, will be offered. For next week quite a number of sales are projected, full details in reference to which will be given on Monday. Among the most important of the auctions proposed is that to be held on Thursday, under the direction of A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co., at Whitestone, Long Island, at which 550 building lots will be sold, together with fifteen newly-finished cottage houses. The enterprise is one of special interest, as a large amount of money has been expended in the improvement of the property, in order to fit it for the purpose designed—a desirable locality for suburban residences.

At private sale, E. C. FERGUSON, No. 111 Broadway, reports having recently disposed of the following property: Thirty-two lots on the south side of Sixty-sixth-street, forming one-half of the block between Eighth and Ninth avenues, sold for $300 each; four lots on the south-west corner of Sixty-second-street and Eighty-second-street sold for $10,000; and five lots on the north side of One Hundred and Sixteenth-street, 140 feet west of Fifth-avenue, sold for $5,250 each. The same broker also reports the sale of ten lots on the north-east corner of Sixty-fourth-street and Madison-avenue for $125,000. Some property sold a few months since for $105,000.

D. M. SEAMAN, No. 14 Pine-street, reports having effected the sale of the premises known as Nos. 206 and 207 West-street, for $160,000; property embraces a two-story brick foundry building with two lots together, 44 by 83, also water rights in front.

FIFTEEN NEWLY-FINISHED HOUSES
AT
WHITESTONE, L. I.,
TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION, ON THE PREMISES,
THURSDAY, JUNE 1, BY A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO.

Beautifully situated on high ground, commanding magnificent views of the East River and Long Island Sound.

Also, fifteen new cottages within five minutes' walk of the depot, on finished avenues, which are already occupied, guttered, and miscellaneous and paid for. Thirty trains daily on the best equipped and most favored railroad in the country. Two steam-boats land daily at Whitestone. The houses were built by Elmendorf and contain furnaces, ranges, hot and cold water, gas-pipes, stationary tubs, bath-room, and water-closets. Each house has ten rooms, marble mantels, grates, and pantries. The taxes are limited by charter one-half of one per cent. This is the first opportunity afforded where such extensive improvements have been made and paid for. The great accessibility of the property to our City, the salubrity and great beauty of the country, and the vast improvements now being made by the proprietors of this tract, offer inducements for suburban residences never before presented to our citizens. Terms most favorable. Maps and particulars at No. 77 Cedar-st.

FOSTER SENTENCED.

His Execution to Take Place on the Fourteenth of July.

HOW HE RECEIVED HIS DOOM.

Address of Judge Cardozo to the Prisoner.

The Motion for a Stay of Proceedings Defeated.

Further Particulars Concerning the Finding of the Jury.

Yesterday morning WILLIAM FOSTER, convicted of the murder of Mr. AVERY D. PUTNAM in the first degree, was formally sentenced. The police arrangements in the case did not appear to have been diminished, and the sentimental interest in the drama created even a greater amount of attention than any of the previous stages. Those who were the lucky (or unlucky) possessors of tickets admitting them to the Court-room were only moderately filled by a respectable and intelligent audience. Shortly after 10 o'clock Judge CARDOZO, pale and haggard-looking, and evidently aware of the responsibility of his position, entered the Court, Judge GARVIN, Judge STUART and the other counsel engaged in the case making their appearance almost simultaneously. The prisoner's wife arrived early, and about 10½ FOSTER was brought in in the custody of the Deputy Sheriffs. He looked paler and more care-worn than on the previous day, and did not attempt to hide the anxiety which overpowered him. When asked in the usual manner what he had to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced against him, he burst into tears, and with a spasmodic effort denied having any intention to murder Mr. PUTNAM, alleging that drunkenness was the cause of the crime. Sentence was then pronounced as given below. FOSTER was immediately afterward handed into the custody of the Sheriff and remanded again to the Tombs, where he will remain until the 14th of July next when he will be executed.

THE SENTENCE.

Judge GARVIN said: If the Court please, I move now that, in accordance with the verdict rendered by the jury, of guilty of murder in the first degree, the Court now proceed to pronounce the sentence of the law upon WILLIAM FOSTER for the murder of AVERY D. PUTNAM.

Judge STUART—My learned associate and myself had purposed to move in arrest of judgment before your Honor, but in consulting the case of the People vs. Appel, with which you are familiar, we are satisfied this Court has not the power to afford any relief to this unfortunate man under the present circumstances of the case and in his present condition, and the motion of favorably entertained and indeed granted, would only work some little delay, bringing no benefit to the prisoner and perhaps no justice to the people. We therefore have concluded not to submit that motion to your Honor this morning, but to rely upon our writ of error, and as we know, and your Honor knows, we can take no action in that direction until after judgment is pronounced. For these reasons we are compelled to forego what I had suggested, and now readily and willingly, and with great humility, await the judgment of the Court.

The prisoner was then asked what he had to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced against him.

FOSTER, (in violent grief)—I had been drinking a great deal that day and night. I had no intention of killing Mr. PUTNAM; I did not know at the time what I was doing.

Judge CARDOZO then proceeded to pass sentence. He said:

"I have no wish by any words of mine to increase the anguish of your present situation. Your crime was a frightful crime, and you are to expiate it as far as this world is concerned, by a fearful doom, not only in vindication of our outraged laws, but as a terrible warning to the community, which it will be well for them to heed, lest worse forms of violence and blood. The [illegible] from the [illegible] have had a couple of months to [illegible] every point of your case, and [illegible] has been ruled in your favor. Counsel most learned and faithful have urged every thing which ability and zeal could suggest in your behalf. A most intelligent and impartial jury, substantially of your own selection, have given your trial. For days the case was tossed here for human effort, almost even for human [illegible], doubtless, only by that tenderness which right-minded men generally feel in respect to life, the jury have recommended you to mercy. That belongs only to the Executive, and let me caution you against a too fondly-cherished hope that your life may be spared, for let me admonish you to prepare through the instrumentality of the religious faith in which you were educated to meet the dread change that awaits you. It is not likely that human mercy will be accorded to you. Appeal specially to Him who is all-merciful. The solemn duty only remains for me to declare the sentence which the law prescribes. It is that you, WILLIAM FOSTER, be taken hence to jail, and there on the 14th day of July next be hanged by the neck until you are dead. May God have mercy upon your soul."

The prisoner was then removed.

HOW THE VERDICT WAS REACHED.

It has been ascertained, beyond the fact that the jury in the Foster case stood ten for murder in the first degree when they went into their room on Wednesday, that they were twelve were unanimous in the opinion that FOSTER killed PUTNAM with a premeditated design to take life. They arrived at this conclusion by a simple course of reasoning. They considered that the weapon used was of a deadly character; that FOSTER formed the design when he left the driver if he had a hook; that he secured it when Mr. PUTNAM was leaving the car; that he went around the vehicle, instead of passing behind his victim, and struck the blow from which he died, doing the deed with deliberation and with the intention of the jury, with such premeditation as the facts being shown to their satisfaction there was but one other question to consider, and that was how to apply the law. The sections of the statutes relating to the two grades of the offense—murder in the first and second degree—which had been given them in the charge of the Court, they well and carefully remembered, and having found that malice and premeditation existed, they could not do otherwise than find a verdict of murder in the first degree. The two jurymen who originally dissented did so purely from motives of humanity. They decided to be the instruments of sending FOSTER to a felon's grave, and not to find some way of escape. But it was impossible. The law prescribed the penalty for the crimes which, in their examination, was clearly proven. They all united in a recommendation to mercy, willing to give FOSTER the benefit of the doubt in favor of life by an appeal to the Executive. The verdict, as it stands, was agreed upon by the jury at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning. They waited until 10 o'clock in the expectation that the Court would send for them. Then one of their number suggested that the Court did not do until 10 o'clock, and that they had better send a message to the Court. This was sent to the Judge, asking if he would send for them. He replied, but [illegible]

A Tombs [illegible] that such a message had been sent, agreed, when the Judge requested them to wait until the prisoner should be sent for, so that it was about 11 o'clock before the verdict was delivered. The defense, in the estimation of the jury, was nothing. The prosecution proved all the facts which the defendant's counsel virtually admitted, all that had been shown on the part of the people. The only point the defense sought to make was that the deceased had not been properly treated, and that he might have recovered, but those "twelve silent witnesses," the fragments of Mr. PUTNAM'S skull, banished all theories on this point. The fact that FOSTER was drunk was only incidentally brought out, and no attempt was made on the part of the defense to show the grade of intoxication at the time the blows were struck. The summing up of the case on the part of defendant's counsel was wearying to the jury, but they were compelled to suffer the infliction of a two-hours' speech from the associate counsel after Judge STUART had said all that seemed to be necessary, and had concluded by begging for a verdict of murder in the second degree as the highest crime of which the prisoner was guilty.

It is now probable that Judge STUART will draw up as strong an appeal as possible for presentation to the Governor, and that he will [illegible] to procure the signatures of the jury to it. They have already recommended FOSTER to mercy, and cannot well decline to sign the appeal, but it may not have any effect. The current is known to be inflexible in such cases, as was shown in the case of RAGE, where great provocation is alleged to have existed for the commission of the crime) and it is believed that, considering the state of public sentiment in this case of FOSTER, he will have [illegible] executive clemency.

It is said that the arrangement on the bill of exceptions which Judge STUART is preparing can only be heard at the General Term of the Supreme Court, which sets in June, and that therefore the case will have to go over until the Fall, if stay of proceedings be granted. It was the prevailing impression, while Judge STUART was engaged in selecting a jury, that delays were interposed for the purpose of putting the case over beyond the June General Term of the Court. In the event of the stay of proceedings being granted, the argument will be heard on a bill of exceptions before the General Term in November, and thence an appeal will be taken if a decision adverse to the prisoner is made—to the Court of last resort; so that final judgment may not be had before December or January next. But Judge CARDOZO may refuse to grant a stay of proceedings—as it is a matter of discretion in the Court and Terminer, and if the stay should also be refused by the other Judges of the district, and by the June General Term, the condemned would be executed, even while his case was practically pending in the upper Courts.

THE CAPTURED ROUGHS.

Edwards and Collins at Police Headquarters and the Tombs—They Are Committed for Trial at the Special Sessions This Morning.

The fraternity of roughs has rarely been in more disturbed condition than it was on the reception of the news that the noted bruisers BILLY EDWARDS and TOM COLLINS had been captured by the Police immediately upon their return to the City from the prize-fight on Long Island, and were locked up at Police Headquarters. As it was understood that they would be taken before Justice DOWLING at an early hour, hundreds of the short-haired and bullet-headed gathered at the Tombs Police Court to learn the fate of their idols. Justice DOWLING was greatly annoyed by the crowds filling his Court, and when presently a noted criminal lawyer made inquiries as to what disposition had been made of the prize-fighters, the Magistrate said that they had not been brought before him, and he supposed that they had been sent before Justice MCQUADE. This announcement had the desired effect of clearing the room of the roughs, who rushed away, and by all sorts of conveyances, but principally by steamers, sought the quiet suburban Court at Harlem, only to find that nothing was known there of the subjects of their search.

Meantime the bruisers had remained in their cells at Police Head-quarters, the lions of the hour. Hundreds of persons sought interviews with them, and the development of a morbid curiosity to see the illiterate youths whose sole merit was proficiency in the art of pummeling, was something marvelous. EDWARDS and COLLINS occupied adjoining rooms, and received all comers with the dignity becoming their temporary importance. Both were battered, bruised, disfigured, repulsive in appearance, and could not be mistaken for other than the brutes they are. At noon they were removed from their cells and in charge of Capt. IRVING, Detectives DUNN, KELSO and FINKS, were taken before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs. Being recognized, hundreds of urchins and loafers gathered about them, and Capt. IRVING could only escape the miserable care to pass upon the disheveled roughs by taking refuge in a Bleecker-street car. They were thus got into the examination-room attached to the Tombs Police Court without being followed by a crowd of admirers. On the contrary no one was present but the Magistrate, Superintendent MATSELL, the prisoners, the witnesses against them, the officers, and the reporters. The proceedings were brief and informal. An affidavit was made by EDWARD DELOUGE, of No. 187 Chrystie-street, JOHN MADDEN, No. 136 East Twenty-eighth-street, and JAMES MCKENNA, No. 12 West Twenty-fourth-street, that EDWARDS and COLLINS had been engaged as principals in a prize-fight within the jurisdiction of the State of New-York, and that they had secretly left the City of New-York for the purpose of engaging therein. The prisoners were then committed to the Tombs in default of $1,000 bail each, for their appearance for trial in the Court of Special Sessions, this morning. The witnesses were immediately served with subpœnas, and were also required to give bonds in $1,000 each for their attendance, to testify in the case.

THOMAS MCALPINE, one of the umpires of the recent prize-fight, was arrested, late last night, and locked up at Police Head-quarters.

THE INSURANCE CONVENTION.

Third Day's Proceedings—Important Paper from the Chamber of Commerce.

The third day's session of the Insurance Convention was held yesterday at the office of the New-York Board of Fire Underwriters.

Mr. A. A. LOW, Chairman of a committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce, read a communication from that Committee. The Committee expressed their appreciation of the importance of the objects of the Convention, and urged the enactment of such laws as would secure safety to the insured with the least inconvenience to the companies. The possibility of great conflagrations occurring in this and other large cities was alluded to, and the necessity of having fire insurance companies rest upon a firm basis, was dwelt upon. Fire companies were liable to be broken up by the disasters of a single day, while life companies were not subject to such calamities. For this reason the Committee confined their attention to the subject of insurance against fire. It was held that the public safety required that companies should not transact business in a State, when their funds were locked up in other States, and various other suggestions were offered for the consideration of the Convention. The report was signed by A. A. LOW, Jonathan Sturges, S. Chittenden, M. K. Jesup and John Taylor Johnston.

Resolutions were read from the National Board of Underwriters to the effect that the interests of the public required clear and concise reports of the condition of all fire insurance companies, and an uniformity of forms and rules.

A paper was read from the Accidental Insurance Company, setting forth that the same municipal supervision, should be exercised over accident companies. They hoped that the day would be far distant when contracts of insurance will be regarded in the same light as all other kinds of commercial contracts.

Mr. ELISHA WRIGHT, of Massachusetts, read a paper on the Act of Solvency in Life Insurance. In this Act the solvency of a company is defined, the following points should be [illegible] assessment:

1. The present [illegible]. 2. The actual premiums required to be received. 3. The rate of interest that may be expected. 4. The rate of mortality. 5. The range of the [illegible] 6. The average claim will be [illegible] policy. 7. The number of policy claims. 8. The [illegible]

The Convention [illegible] and [illegible] until to-day.

[illegible] investigation in reference to the claim preferred by F. C. EDMOND for the information given by the Radcliffe diamond smuggling case. EDMOND and JUSTICE were examined. They agreed in stating that the arrest was produced by the information of EDMOND, and that GIL. HERLY promised him not only immunity from punishment, but also recompense as a Government witness. On the occasion of their interview, they said, MR. HERLY stated he would realize [illegible] by the arrest. The case is still on.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

A writ of habeas corpus in the case of EDWARD H. CURTIS, an enlisted soldier of the United States Army, who claims to be a minor, was returnable before Judge MCCUNN, in the Special Term of the Superior Court, yesterday. The petitioner, with his squad, had left for the General Depot in Pennsylvania before the writ was served. The officer's return, that the petitioner was not in his custody, was therefore accepted as satisfactory and the writ discharged.

In the Marine Court, yesterday, the case of DORMAN vs. MITCHELL having been called, Mr. COUDERT, who appeared on one side, objected to GEORGE W. NILES, the attorney opposed, appearing, on the ground that twenty-five years ago he was convicted of a felony and disbarred. Mr. NILES produced a pardon from the Governor at the time of his liberation, and gave other explanations. The Judge adjourned the further hearing until next week.

A regular meeting of the members of the New-York Liberal Club was held last evening, at Plimpton Hall, corner of Ninth and Stuyvesant streets. Mr. WALTER C. LYMAN read an interesting paper entitled "A New System of Dramatic Expression," explanatory of the relation existing between the mind and the different organs of the body, and showing the effect which the action of the former produced in the formation and general appearance of the frame.

Coroner YOUNG was notified yesterday to hold an inquest on the remains of AUGUST FRANCHARD, a native of France, who resided at No. 119 West Nineteenth-street. Deceased, some time since, betrayed symptoms of insanity, and was taken to Bloomingdale Asylum, but after a time, being supposed to be restored, was discharged and went to the house of a friend in Mount Vernon, Westchester County, Wednesday, and committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor during one of the paroxysms of his malady.

Music at Central Park today, at 3½ P. M.

BROOKLYN.

The body of an unknown man was picked up in the water off the Atlantic Dock, yesterday morning, by a boatman, who immediately informed the Coroner of the fact, and demanded $2, the usual legal fee for such service. The Coroner, however, refused to pay, whereupon the boatman promptly returned to the dock and set the body once more afloat. This difficulty arose from the fact that the Supervisor at Large refuses to make any allowance for the finding of bodies, and the Coroners refuse to pay it out of their own inquest fees.

Mr. PATRICK GILMORE, the well-known music director, was by order of Judge GILBERT, of the Supreme Court, arrested yesterday morning for a debt of $130, owed to another musician named CARL EISNER. The account had been standing since 1868. After a short hearing Mr. GILMORE, by the advice of his counsel, compromised the matter, and was then set at liberty.

Since the failure of the property-owners of Montague-street to obtain a permanent injunction restraining the city from collecting the assessments for the repavement of that thoroughfare, a general disposition has been shown by the owners of real estate to abandon the contest and pay their taxes.

ELIJAH A. CRAMER made application in the Supreme Court, yesterday, to get possession of his five children from his wife, on the ground that she is addicted to drinking and other evil habits. The Court issued an order requiring the presence of the mother and children today.

FREDERICK HILKEMEIR, engineer, residing at No. 48 Morrell-street, Eastern District, had ten of his teeth knocked out and two ribs broken by a runaway horse, at a late hour on Thursday night.

LONG ISLAND.

JOHN SEAMAN was arraigned, last evening, before Justice HAMILTON, charged with deserting his wife, JULIA. Both JOHN and JULIA are of African descent, and the interest taken by the colored people of Flushing is immense. Complaint was also made against a colored lady styled HANNAH BLAIR, who, it is alleged, has threatened JULIA. When the so-called HANNAH BLAIR was put upon the stand, the Court, District-Attorney and audience were astonished to hear that her name was Mrs. HANNAH SEAMAN, and she was the wife of the prisoner. The witness in Court were too much, and the case was delayed for a further hearing.

Yesterday morning the harness-shop of [illegible] and CORNELL, on Main-street, Flushing, was entered by burglars, and a large amount of valuables, including a number of watches, stolen. The burglars gained an entrance by means of the rear door, the key of which was turned by nippers. Blankets were found spread on the floor, as if they intended to remove a large amount of loose material, partially filled sacks, &c. It is thought they were frightened before the work was completed.

On account of the difficulty in inducing any one to accept the office of Overseer of Highways for the ensuing year, the Trustees of Hempstead and other town have been compelled to hold open meetings. The office, it is understood, has been offered to a dozen different persons, all of whom politely declined the honor.

NEW-JERSEY.

Col. DUDLEY S. GREGORY, Jr., and Messrs. THOMAS MURPHY and JOHN BRADLEY had a narrow escape from a terrible death, yesterday, while attending the testing of the fire-alarm telegraph in Jersey City. The party had arrived at No. 3 Engine-house, when, before the engineer finished his examination of the bell, the weights controlling it, weighing about 2,700 pounds, became detached and fell through the tower to the ground, almost grazing the persons of the gentlemen, who were so petrified with fear that they could not move for several minutes.

Two immigrant swindlers named GEORGE SEYMOUR and JAMES WILSON, were arrested at the Erie Railway depot yesterday, while attempting to work [illegible] business. On their persons were found several "checks" for amounts varying from hundreds to thousands, also a supply of $20 gold pieces which they were very solicitous to exchange with the unwary for their equivalent in greenbacks. The accused will have a hearing today.

The trial of DENIS MCGROTTY for the killing of ROBERT HARTMANN, at Lafayette, on board of a year since, was concluded yesterday, the jury rendering a verdict of acquittal. This is the second trial for MCGROTTY, the jury having disagreed on the previous one last Summer. Mr. LEON ABBOTT defended the prisoner. The latter was warmly greeted by his many friends on leaving the Court.

One of the night watchmen employed at the Central Railroad Depot, states that early yesterday morning he obtained a pretty distinct view of a river pirate rifling a box of goods on the pier. He drew his revolver and fired, but he reached his boat ahead of the watchman, in which were seven companions. He thinks he wounded the pirate, as he could hear him groan for a long distance.

A terrible blasting accident occurred on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, near Port Jervis, on Thursday. The blast failed to explode as expected, and the men approached to examine it, when it suddenly exploded, killing instantly one of the men, a Hollander, causing his head from his body, and seriously injuring others of the party.

Early yesterday morning, a miserable-looking man named PETER MCINTOSH, entered the Third Police Precinct of Jersey City, and said he was a GRAND ARMY OF CUBA mission, canvassing for recruits. On examining his person, a stab wound was discovered on the breast, which he said he received while looking for an insect he swallowed.

Late on Thursday evening, a fisherman named IRA W. PIERSON, residing in the township of Whippany, near Morristown, was accidentally drowned in the Whippany River, by stepping into a deep hole of which he was unaware. In his descent he also got entangled in the net which he was hauling.

Another destructive fire is reported in South Jersey. It commenced in Oyster Creek, below Toms's River, and swept northward for ten miles, burning a space of five miles in width. Seven thousand acres of wooded land were burned over, and no estimate can be made of the loss, which is exceedingly heavy.
